TROOPS BATTLE WITH STRIKE MOB

One Hundred Injured in All-Night Fighting—Women Urge Steel Strikers to Riot.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 15.—The State constabulary and several hundred deputy sheriffs, all armed with riot guns, are to-day threatened by 5,000 foreigners, held together by a spirit of destruction and vengeance for long-endured wrongs alleged to have been perpetrated by petty bosses at the works of the Pressed Steel Car Company at McKee's Rocks.

Firing was almost continuous throughout the night, from the outside, directed at the works and the mill yards, apparently in the hope of a chance shot hitting one of the representatives of law and order. One hundred people have been injured.

Sheriff Gumbert has armed his deputies with riot guns and if they shoot it will be to kill. He evidently feared the events of the second day would prove too serious for handling by the local forces and at midnight wired for the State constabulary.

Women Worse Than Men.

Troop A, of Greensburg, in charge of Lieutenant Smith, arrived on a special train at 2:15 a. m. to-day and at once took up positions at the works.

In the fighting so far over a hundred men were injured, and while no deaths have occurred as yet there are several who will die. One man, Tony Caslio, received fifty shots of buckshot and still lives.

Police Beaten.

Eight persons were so badly injured that they could not be hurried away by their friends. Three are in the Ohio Valley Hospital, but they cannot speak English and their names cannot be learned.

The others very seriously injured are John Farrell, Chief of Police, Stowe Township, shot through fleshy part of arm and crushed twice times, will live; Renkin Muins, workman, shot through body, probably will die; Sophia Mesge, wife of striker Mesger, hit by brick while trying to get her husband out of the mob, injured seriously, Harry Fouchs, workman, shot through arm, bone broken.

At least seven women were seen to be carried away by friends, but no trace of them can be found. They had taken part in the riot, but, fearing the law, refuse to admit they are injured.

Policemen have been disarmed, stripped of their emblems of authority and even their clothes, and then savagely beaten. Men who for any reason are obnoxious to the strikers are pursued into their hiding places, dragged forth and made a football of by the maddened foreigners.

The women are worse than the men. Frequently carrying infants and regardless of danger they appear in the thick of the melees and urge the men on to deeds of violence.

The strike is probably unparalleled in the annals of the country. There are now 5,000 men out, principally Hungarians and Poles, and they have no organization of leaders, but seem animated with the one desire to work or let any one else even approach the works.

Saloons Closed.

Their grievances are all due to the pooling system of wages recently introduced into the plant, whereby the company pays share and share alike to men on a car, and the men allege that frequently, after two weeks' work they have but $10 or $12 coming in their pay envelope and sometimes not that much. They also allege that petty bosses charge new men $10 for a job and after allowing them to work a week discharge them and sell the job to another dupe.

All the saloons in McKee's Rocks and surrounding boroughs have been closed by the authorities, but the foreigners appear to have no trouble in obtaining intoxicants.

JEFFRIES READY FOR JOHNSON

TORONTO, July 15.—"Who is the champion? Well, I can't be blamed for claiming the title, and I'm here now ready to do business at the old stand," Jim Jeffries declared to-day, in a statement denouncing the story that said he wouldn't meet Johnson.

A dispatch from Kansas City says one of Jeffries's numerous publicity men has reached that town and announces that Jeffries will post his forfeit for a fight in thirty days. "He will not name Johnson when he puts up his money," said Jeff's mouthpiece, "but will fight the first man who covers his money. He is the champion and will not challenge Johnson for that reason."

Johnson is in Chicago, where Jeffries will be Saturday. An effort will be made to get them to sign articles there. But Sam Berger, Jeff's manager, said to-day that he didn't expect Johnson would be on hand when the "big fellow" got to Chicago. Jeffries himself said:

"I'll fight Johnson, and it won't be any Tommy Burns that he'll find in the ring. Burns is a champion."

"Jack (Twin) Sullivan trimmed him twice; Jill Squires laid him beaten, but didn't know it. Squires copped him on the jaw, and Tommy hung on to keep from being knocked out. If Squires had known enough he could have put him away then.

"Burns only had one hand. He could

SUBMARINE SUNK, 13 MEN DROWN

LONDON, July 15.—The British submarine C-11 is reported to have been sunk in collision with submarine C-17 off Lowestof, East Coast, to-day, when a lieutenant and twelve members of the crew were drowned. Lieutenant Brodie is the officer reported missing. Submarine C-17 was badly damaged.

Immediately after the collision submarine C 17 started on a race for Yarmouth, hoping to reach that point before she sank. Dilapidated wireless messages were received from these the impression was gained that both vessels met during manoeuvres. The vessels were playing for positions in the fleet column, which will manoeuvre in the Thames. The wireless reports say that the C 11 sank immediately after she had been rammed.

EVELYN THAW MUST TELL DEATH THREAT

NEW YORK, July 15.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, contrary to the general impression created by Justice Mills's ruling of Tuesday, must go on the witness stand in her husband's proceedings to-day and testify as to the threats against her life, in the State's case against him.

"I will take the stand and tell of my husband's threat to kill me; but I will not open my mouth until I can see that he is searched in court, so that he cannot kill me there. I know that he means to kill me at the first chance and will do it here if I am not protected."

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, with these words, threw the court officials into consternation when she revealed the real reason why she hesitated the other day to relate what actual fear kept her from testifying as to the threats against her life. In the State's case against him.

So impressed was Deputy Attorney General Clark with Mrs. Thaw's statement to him that Thaw was searched.

In court at White Plains, Deputy At-

BARON IN DUEL FOR HAND OF BOSTON GIRL

A story of romance and adventure is curiously intermingled in the courtship of Miss Florence Girard, a Boston girl, said to be an heiress, and Dr. W. H. Darling of Minneapolis, which has just culminated in their marriage in Vienna.

Before Miss Girard became a bride she renounced a title and baronial estate because a plain American physician knew something of medicine and something more of slinging the sights of a high-power rifle.

The acquaintance began prosaically enough. Miss Girard, who is reported to be the daughter of a retired banker of Boston, was in Europe for the sake of art.

Dr. Darling for twelve or fifteen years has been assistant superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at St. Petersburg, but in January of 1908 he went to Vienna for post graduate work. When he reached Vienna Miss Girard and her mother were living at Trumbell Inn on Peetzendorferstrasse, where the young woman relaxed as the belle of the American colony.

Baron as a Rival.

Dr. Darling took quarters in the same hotel, but the acquaintance did not progress beyond a formal stage until Miss Girard was taken ill. He treated her for typhoid fever, and eventually she regained her health.

Convinced of his rating in the affections of Miss Girard, Dr. Darling returned last March and engaged offices in Minneapolis to resume an active practice.

Scarcely had he reached Minneapolis, however, before disquieting news reached him from friends in Vienna. They reported the appearance of a dangerous rival for the hand of Miss Girard, a Baron Herbert von Vetter, a scion of German nobility and the possessor of large estates.

Duel for Girl's Hand.

Resenting the appearance of the Minneapolis doctor, Baron von Vetter doubled his attentions and sought to discredit his rival, and, being an excellent swordsman, the Baron sought an affront, and when the opportunity presented itself challenged his competitor.

Given the choice of weapons, Dr. Darling selected rifles, and although denounced as a murderer and barbarian, refused to waive the right. In the duel Dr. Darling received a superficial wound in the right shoulder, but shattered one of the Baron's hands, and emerged with the laurels of the encounter.

TROOPS QUIT SHAH; ENEMIES BESIEGE CITY

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—Deserted by many of his troops, his palace besieged and the beautiful city of Teheran scarred by battle strife, the Shah of Persia yet held out to-day, urging his generals to make one more gallant effort to drive the invading Nationalists from the city's gates. That was the report from Teheran dispatches.

Despite the fact that the British and Russian ministers are still urging the Shah to make peace with the Nationalists, he has persistently refused. Many of the Persian Cossacks have surrendered, giving up their arms rather than die fighting in a cause that now looks hopeless.

Teheran presents a ruinful spectacle today. The buildings are rent and scarred by musket and cannon fire; fires have broken out from the soldiers' bivouacs, and the panic of fear has seized the inhabitants, many of whom have hidden in their homes for days.

On account of the prevailing conditions only the most meagre messages are sent out of Teheran. However, one report gained currency to-day that the Shah is preparing to abdicate. According to the Bircheyin Viedomosti, he is preparing to take refuge in the Russian Legation.

The foreign residents of the city have been offered no harm so far. Many have left and others are preparing to leave, for it is felt that, unless peace is made within the next few days, the Russian troops will move upon the city, which may precipitate further fighting.

STAGE WILL LOSE ANTOINETTE PERRY

DENVER, COLO., July 15.—Miss Antoinette Perry, who has, for several seasons been leading lady for David Warfield, will give up the stage and become the wife of Frank W. Frueauff, vice-president and general manager of the Denver Gas and Electric Company, early next Fall. Mr. Frueauff was elected president of the National Electric Light Association at the annual convention at Atlantic City last month.

BIG SHIFTS DUE TO-DAY IN STANDING OF THE TEAMS

The Red Sox play a double-header at St. Louis to-day against the disorganized Browns, and, if they win both games while the Athletics lose to the Naps, they will be tied for second place with Mack's men. On the other hand if they lose both games and the Naps win, the Red Sox drop into fourth place.

Here in Boston the Cubs will take another whack at the Doves, the game being next to the last of the series.

BOSTON AGAIN IN GRASP OF BLAZING SUN

Boston began to boil to-day under a clear sky and a scorching sun, with scarcely enough wind to clear away the smoke of the city. At 2 o'clock p. m. the temperature was 78.

Forecaster Smith says there is no rain in sight. Crops all over New England are in a bad way, as there has been no rain to amount to anything for nearly a month. Pasture land is dried up and there is danger that the milk supply will begin to diminish unless the cattle can get green feed soon.

Comparative temperatures in other places show that Boston has been rather warmer than her sister cities in the East. New York has enjoyed a maximum temperature of 84 degrees, and Chicago has just equaled Boston's mark with a mercury at 86. The hottest place in the country to-day was Abilene, Texas, where the mercury stood at 98.

MAN OF THREE PAROLES BACK IN JAIL AGAIN

After searching for a month, the police found George E. Swain, an inveterate boss thief and habitual offender, in the East Cambridge House of Correction, serving a three months' sentence for larceny. He was sent there from Lowell on June 22. He is wanted on the charge of stealing a horse and buggy from Fire Commissioner Frank T. Lewis of Malden, N. H., on June 5. Swain has served several long terms in Charlestown prison and has been paroled twice, once by Governor Crane when he was serving a twenty-five year sentence under the old habitual criminal act, and again, but a short time ago, by Governor Draper.

Swain is now sixty years of age. His career of crime extends over a period of twenty-three years, and in that time it is alleged he has stolen over a thousand rigs which he would either sell for a song or abandon. He also made a practice of paying for purchases in small stores with worthless checks. He has served prison sentences throughout New England, New York and New Jersey. He was born of a good family in Wilmington.

WRIGHT BROTHERS ASK FOR MORE TIME

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Wright brothers, on account of the various unfortunate incidents that have happened since their arrival at Fort Myer, may find it necessary to obtain a further extension of time in which to complete their official aeroplane speed and endurance trials.

Up to this time Orville Wright has not made one flight that can be called as successful as the average flight made by him at Fort Myer last September.

NAVAL MILITIA TO GO ON BATTLESHIPS

Beginning July 25 and continuing until August 1 the most important tour of duty in the history of the State will be made by the Massachusetts naval militia with the battleship fleet now off Provincetown. To what ships the commands will be assigned is still a matter of conjecture, and will not be decided until after Admiral Schroeder gets the coaling of some of the vessels out of the way. There are 500 officers and men in the battalion.

EVELYN THAW MUST REVEAL DEATH THREAT

torney-General Clark presented a case (62 Appellate Division, 321, Millspaugh vs. Potter), wherein it has been held that a threat made by a husband against his wife is not a confidential communication.

Mr. Morschauser said he had been too busy to look up the matter, and submitted no cases to bear out his contention that Evelyn Thaw could not testify.

Justice Mills seemed greatly impressed with the case presented by Mr. Clark and stated that unless Mr. Morschauser could offset he would be forced to change his ruling of Tuesday and would put young Mrs. Thaw on the stand.

Daniel O'Reilly was present under subpoena to testify as to his legal relations with Thaw at the time in question. He did not go on the stand, but stated he was Thaw's lawyer until February 22, 1909, and at the time of the alleged threat was Thaw's attorney.

This let Mr. O'Reilly out, and he was excused. If the line presented by the State holds good, this lawyer's position would have made no difference in the matter.

Court Will Question Thaw.

Great interest now centers about the situation as regards Evelyn Thaw on the stand. There is a question whether she can plead personal privilege under the present conditions and whether if she can, she will.

Another matter that gave added zest to the case and called forth renewed interest in what otherwise would have been a rather tame affair, was the announcement by Justice Mills that if Mr. Morschauser does not put Thaw on the witness stand after he has been examined by alienists the Court will do so.

After the Justice had so stated, Mr. Morschauser said Thaw was ready and willing to go on the stand in his own behalf.

This point came out during an argument by the deputy attorney general in which he asked Mr. Morschauser to stipulate that he would not object to the State's introduction of certain of the records of the second trial for the killing of Stanford White, principally the testimony of lay witnesses, thus to expedite matters.

Mr. Morschauser offered no objection.

Mr. Morschauser had not announced his experts when the case opened to-day.

Catholic Convention Will End To-Night

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Cardinal Gibbons Once More Honored

The three days' sessions of the national convention of the Catholic Educational Association of America are brought to a close this evening with a public meeting in Jordan Hall, corner of Huntington avenue and Gainsboro street.

To-night's meeting is held under the auspices of the Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, the local committee and the executive board of the Catholic Educational Association.

The topic of the evening is "Education and Democracy." This is treated under three heads, "Education and Character," "Education and Social Duty" and "Respect for Law."

At the annual election in the chapel of Boston College there were only two changes from last year. The Rev. Thomas J. Sheehan of Milwaukee was elected as president general in place of the Rt. Rev. D. J. O'Connell, D.D., and Henry Brumgoos in the place of the Very Rev. James A. Burns, C.S.S., as the second vice president general.

Gibbons Honorary Head.

His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons remains honorary president, the Very Rev. P. J. Conroy, S. M., as vice president general the Rev. W. J. Shanley as third vice president general, the Rev. Francis W. Howard is secretary general, and the Rev. Francis T. Moran, D.D., as treasurer general. The members of the standing committees are unchanged.

Following the election came a public meeting under the direction of the College department. Besides speeches by prominent Catholics there were several vocal selections by the Boston College Choral Society. The Rev. T. J. Gasson, S. J., introduced the Rev. C. B. Moulinier, who represented the College Department, as the first speaker.

"Undermine Morals."

Hugh Malloy, the best English scholar graduated from Boston College, was the next speaker.

"We condemn and chide, so farras possible, the wrongs and monstrous anarchists and degenerates, however they are so openly subversive of government, morality and order," said Malloy. "But the lawless and blatant doctrines are absolutely harmless, when compared with the highly turned and polished burdens of thought which insidiously undermine the bondities of faith and morals."

"The Problem of the Backward Child," written by a sister of charity of Nazareth, Ky., and the discussion, "A Christian Brother," by a sister of charity of Madison, N. J., proved interesting and instructive. The feature of the session was the singing by 500 girls, who were divided into four groups to illustrate the different grades in singing, as well as the paper on "Vocal Music and Its Place in the School Curriculum," by a sister of Notre Dame, which was read by the Rev. Fr. J. J. McCarthy.

PASTOR PROPOSES TO BOTTLE UP LIGHTNING

BAYONNE, N. J., July 15.—The Rev. Theodore Geissel, a Baptist clergyman of this place, proposes erecting a steel Tower of Babel to bottle up the lightning. He says there are 10,000,000,000 volts of electricity in every flash of lightning two miles long. Bottle this in storage batteries and in a year's time you could buy out Rockefeller.

FED SHOT TO CHICKS TO MAKE THEM HEAVY

NEWARK, N. J., July 15.—Henry Gerbaring, a poultry dealer, bought 120 dressed chickens from a stranger at twenty cents a pound. After several angry customers had come in with bags of birdshot Gerbaring investigated. In the crops of the remaining chickens he found an average of a pound and a half of shot each.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

FALL RIVER, July 15.—While fumigating a henhouse at her home off Washington street, Pottersville, Mrs. Delia Canuel, twenty-three years of age, was frightfully burned and died several hours later.

JEFFRIES IS READY FOR ALL COMERS

nec punch with his right if you paid him for it. To be a fighter you must have two hands.

"Who is the champion? Well, I can't be blamed for claiming the title. I take it that a championship is a recognition of supreme ability, a reward of merit. I won the championship from all comers, and my four years' retirement was due to the fact that there was nobody to fight. I could not get anybody to give me a battle, so I turned to other lines and endeavors.

"That was a fake story that I gave the title to Marvin Hart when I retired from the ring. It's absurd on the face of it. How could I pick out any successor? By what right would I be the judge of who was the next best fighter? I could not give the title even if I wanted to, and what's more I did not. The story was spread broadcast at the time under flaring headlines and my denial was printed in small type in obscure corners.

"I'm Ready for Business."

"However, I am here now ready again to do business at the old stand. You can see for yourself what condition I'm in. I'm as hard as nails. Feel that arm and those leg muscles and my back. Any waste tissue there? Not much fat in sight, eh? Well, I weigh 235 pounds now. My fighting weight? I don't know myself, but it won't be much less this time. I've taken off forty pounds since I started training. I hurt my left hand a month ago, but it's all right again."

POLICE CHIEF AND WIFE AT ODDS IN COURT

BROCKTON, July 15.—Chief of Police Frank M. Reynolds of Hull, in the Probate Court, vigorously denied his wife's charges that he had been seen bidding Mrs. Ida M. Fuller good-bye at her home while Mrs. Fuller was clad in her nightgown.

Mrs. Fuller also testified and denied the story that had been told by Mrs. Reynolds earlier in the proceedings.

Mr. Reynolds denied his wife's charges of cruelty. He admitted that he had called and presented flowers to Mrs. Fuller at her home at Atlantic Hill, Nantasket, but denied that there had ever been any impropriety between them. He said that he had been a friend of Mr. Fuller before his death and continued calling as a friend on the widow. He denied remaining over night with Mrs. Fuller in a Boston hotel, as had been charged.

Mrs. Fuller said that she had dined with Reynolds at Boston hotels both by themselves and with other people, but denied that she had ever remained over night at a Boston hotel. She also denied ever bidding good-bye to Mr. Reynolds while clad in a nightgown.

A stir was created among the auditors when Mrs. Fuller said that before her husband's death Mrs. Reynolds had told her one day that she would give ten years of her youth to ruin Reynolds' life.

SEASHORE ROMANCE LEADS TO RUNAWAY WEDDING IN AUTO

Mrs. Cary Holyoke, formerly Mablie Bird, who wed secretly after long taxicab journey.

A pretty love romance has just come to light, which started at Hough's Neck last summer, when the parties were members of the vacation colony there, and which culminated last Friday, in Providence, when Miss Edna Mabel Bird, twenty years old, of No. 11 Whitby terrace, Dorchester, was secretly married to Cory Holyoke of Boston street, Brookline, after journeying there in a taxicab from Boston.

Mrs. M. R. Bird, mother of the young lady, and the parents of Holyoke, who is about the same age as his bride, know that the couple were to be married, for a date had been set for next month, but their slipping away to Providence came as a surprise to both parents and friends.

Miss Bird had a wedding dress all prepared for the wedding next month, and this she took with her to Providence.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward L. Nude of the Methodist church. Following the ceremony the couple returned to Boston and broke the news to their parents. They will live in New York. Holyoke is an electrician, and has secured a position in that city.

The bride is well known in Roxbury and Dorchester, having graduated from the Dearborn Grammar School and later from the Roxbury High School. The Birds own the "Fort Rass" cottage at Hough's Neck, and it was while Miss Bird was there last Summer that she first met Holyoke, who was one of a party of his Brookline young men who occupied the "Bell" cottage.

They soon became acquainted, and their friendship rapidly developed in the many swimming and yachting parties held by the young people along the beach.

FOUR HURLED OVER BANK IN AUTO CRASH

GLOUCESTER, July 15.—Two men and two women in an automobile were thrown down an embankment on the road to Magnolia, about 500 feet from the John Hays Hammond residence, and escaped injury.

In the car were Mrs. R. B. Frances and son, manager of the Abbotsford, Boston; Herman Goldstein of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. Annie B. Dolonel.

ADOPTS WOMAN AND 4 LITTLE ONES AS HEIRS

In order to make it possible for her to come into the possession of his insurance of $10,000 at his death, James F. Murphy, a venerable Waltham resident, has legally adopted Mrs. Norm Decoste and her four children. In this manner Murphy has rewarded the woman who faithfully nursed his wife during the long, lingering days that preceded her death about a year ago.

The petition for the adoption was allowed by Judge McIntyre in the Middlesex Probate Court.

Murphy, who lives at No. 25 Linden street, Waltham, is a general manager of the New England Publishing Company of Boston, and twenty years ago, when the wood carving business, he took into his house a young girl by the name of Rose who had arrived alone in this country.

For several years the pretty Irish lass was a constant friend and companion of Mrs. Murphy. Then she fell in love with Norman Decoste, a produce dealer, and became his wife.

Decoste took his bride to live at Medford, but shortly after the happy couple, following an appeal from Mr. Murphy, came back to live in the Murphy home. Since then Decoste and his wife have made the Murphy residence their home.

One day about two years ago Mrs. Murphy was taken ill. Day after day, and night after night, the days seeming into weeks and the weeks into months, Mrs. Decoste watched and nursed her benefactor with the tenderest and most anxious care.

But a year ago Mrs. Murphy died, and, very hatred and aged and weary with sorrow and the unbearable loss, Murphy heart overflowed with gratitude to Mrs. Decoste, and he told her that she would stay and take care of the home for him.

How could he reward this faithful girl, he thought, was a question that greatly perplexed Mr. Murphy. He finally made the decision by a determination to make her his legal heir.

So the decoste brothers and two sons of Murphy are cut off.

WIDOW OF MINISTER ADOPTS WOMAN WHO NURSED HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Mary Jane Cooke, widow of the Rev. Henry A. Cooke of No. 37 Dana street, Cambridge, has adopted Thorlief Sorre Pedersen, aged thirty-one, who has lived with her for some time.

Cooke was ill for a long time, and up to the time of his death last Spring, Miss Mengers cared for him. Mrs. Cooke believed Miss Pedersen to remain in her household. In the Middlesex Probate Court Judge McIntire granted permission to Mrs. Cooke to adopt Miss Pedersen. It understood Mrs. Cooke desires to leave her property to the young woman.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREAT CASH HOUSE

Our Friday Three-Hour Sales

WHAT OTHER ADVERTISEMENT ever published has made a record like this? For nearly eight years the Three-Hour Sales have been run every Friday, and this bulletin has appeared with the regularity of the sun and moon. Could this have been possible if the public had not ALWAYS found bargains at these sales? You can find the answer in the prices which appear from week to week under this caption—the following prices, for instance:

Cash Deposits

Our Deposit Account System Offers Great Convenience When One Is Away on Vacation. Deposit any amount before going away, then while absent you can order small or phone and have the amount of purchase "charged" to your account. You are thus buying at "cash prices" with all the convenience of a charge account.

Stamp Books

Redeem all Legal Stamp Books at our store. Each full book is entitled to $2.00 in cash or $2.50 in merchandise. Considering our famous low cash prices, the redemption of Stamp Books here returns more in real value than at any other store in Boston. Trust Stamps represent an actual discount on all purchases.

BEVERLY ANGRY BECAUSE TAFT IS DELAYED

BEVERLY, July 15.—If Congress keeps President Taft in Washington until next Tuesday it will be taken to task in manner unexpected and unpleasant.

Upon that day the Beverly Board of Aldermen will meet and, responding to the demand of the citizens that "something must be did," will do it.

Resolutions censuring Congress for its delay in adjourning will be introduced at that meeting by Alderman McPherson, and will undoubtedly adopted.

"Upon ordinary cases," said the Alderman, "I would condemn a municipal government interfering with the affairs of Congress, but this is an extraordinary matter and one in which concerted resolution by the Beverly City Government touched in police lingo, will expressing its opinion of methods which deprive the President of the United States of his Summer vacation would undoubtedly have a salutary effect. That is the purpose of my action."

Others may worry about the tariff bill. The only bill that Beverly cares about is Bill Taft.

Yet Beverly merchants fell down on a chance to make a sale to Robert Taft. That future golf champion, who has entered for the Essex County open tournament, came down here in an automobile to buy a pair of golf shoes or moccasins.

Now it happens that on Wednesday afternoons Beverly looks like Sunday. All the clothing, shoe and grocery stores shut up and their employes get a half holiday and Cabot street ceases to be a busy business mart.

Young Taft leaped off at the first shoe store and tried the door. It was locked. He walked down the line a few blocks and saw another shoe store. The result was the same. Likewise with another and a fourth.

"Say," he asked, in exasperation, of a policeman, "is anybody dead or has everybody gone to a circus? Or may be this is Sunday?"

The officer explained.

It happens that in Beverly is a shoe dealer who is of the Hebrew persuasion and who never shuts up shop as long as there is anybody on the main street. The other dealers have tried to make him join the Wednesday closing movement, but he always says: "Why should I close? I am happy here." He sold Robert Taft a pair of golf shoes.

YOUNG TAFT IN ESSEX CLUB GOLF TOURNEY TO-DAY

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, July 15.—There are ninety-two starters in the annual July tourney which is opened at the Essex County Country Club to-day, and the most prominent of all entered is Robert Taft, son of the President. Young Taft, who has played over the course quite a good deal of late, entered from the Essex Club, of which his father is an honorary member. He has played over the course this Summer in some remarkably low scores for one who never visited this long narrow course before. Another distinguished player is Count Chambrun of the French embassy, who is summering here.

HUSBAND NO. 1 PLANS A FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Frank Greenidge, the man figuring as Husband No. 1 in the marital tangle of Mrs. Alice Greenidge-Smith, denies to-day the charges made by his wife that he deserted her two years ago and that he was cruel and abusive to her and drank to excess.

Greenidge says his wife left him without notice, that he had always supported her up to that time, that he gave her $10 a week for several weeks, that he even arranged to have money sent to her from Chicago and that he was always kind to her.

In his wanderings since they separated, Greenidge has been as far as Venezuela, has fought with the insurgent army in that country, was wounded and finally came back to Cambridge. He says now that he only seeks to regain possession of his children and that he will be content with that.

Tells of Wanderings.

"I did not desert my wife," said Greenidge. "I was working as janitor at No. 780 Washington street, Boston, where I had been four years. I was a sober and steady man.

"I came home after my work on September 15, 1907, and found my wife, children and furniture gone from our home on School street, Cambridge. I traced her to the Phillips block on Main street, Charlestown bridge, and urged her to come back to me. She would not do so.

"On September 17, 1907, I gave her $25 and have her receipt for it right here. Every week after that I gave her $10 and have her receipts for it. I did that for four months.

"Finally I left my place as janitor and went to Chicago. My troubles were becoming too much for me. I sent her money from Chicago for which I have letters in proof. For instance, here is a letter she wrote to E. R. Anderson in Chicago on May 14, 1908, acknowledging receipt of money I had left with him for her.

Doesn't Blame Smith.

"I had gone to Frisco to ship for Venezuela to join the insurgent army. I did not care what became of me. I fought in the insurgent army and was wounded. But I recovered, left Venezuela and came back to Chicago, arriving there in September, 1908.

"I came back to Cambridge July 1 last and found my wife at No. 50 School street on July 2. William Smith, the man she married last September, was there and told Smith not to be afraid, that I would not harm him, that I did not blame him, but that I did blame her. I demanded my children. The next day she left the house and hid the children.

"I never was cruel to my wife. I never abused her once. I am willing to take any one around to people who know me and who know her and let them investigate my side of the story in full."

GIBBONS SAYS LAW TO BLAME FOR DIVORCES

BALTIMORE, July 15.—Cardinal Gibbons, replying to the remarks of ex-Supreme Court Justice Henry B. Brown on the subject of divorce before the Maryland Bar Association at Old Point Comfort last week, said that he differed with Judge Brown in considering the founder of the Christian religion an "idealist." He said:

"The learned jurist will permit me to say that the teachings of Christ have been the basis of all Christian legislation for nearly 2,000 years and continue to be the light and guide of hundreds of millions of souls. We are indebted to this divine legislator for the Christian civilization that rules the destines of Europe, North and South America, Australia and large portions of Asia and Africa.

"There is no subject on which Christ treats more fully and clearly than the question of marriage, which is the very foundation of our family and social life.

"In three of the gospels he proclaims the unity of marriage and permits separation of a married couple only in one case.

"I don't see why a law which has been enforced and cordially accepted in every age and country where Christianity dominates should be considered obsolete or impracticable in the United States.

"The multiplication of divorces is largely ascribed by some writers not to our divorce laws, but to the easy and reckless manner in which ministers of God officiate at marriage services. I have no word of apology or excuse for the scandalous conduct of some clergymen in this respect.

"If the civil laws of all our states were as strict as they are in South Carolina and Canada the persons contemplating it would seriously and prayerfully reflect: they would study each other's disposition and temperaments before entering into a contract which would bind them for life."

SKIRT PIN DESTROYS WOMAN'S EYESIGHT

GLENDALE, N. J., July 15.—Mrs. Wallace Kittel was shaking a dusty skirt, when a pin flew out and deeply imbedded itself in the pupil of her eye. Specialists told her she would never see with the injured eye again.

GRANT BEGINS NEW DUTIES AUGUST 15

14 WARSHIPS TO-DAY BEGIN EVOLUTIONS

PROVINCETOWN, July 15.—Fourteen battleships of the Atlantic fleet are engaged in a series of joint evolutions in Massachusetts Bay to-day. They will not return to this port until late Saturday.

The column of naval giants left here with the flagship Connecticut in the lead. Crowds of sightseers followed the great flotilla as it steamed past Wood End light and out to sea.

Prior to the sailing of the ships, Rear Admiral Schroeder granted an audience to the newspaper men, in which he told of his plans.

"There is plenty for all hands to do" said Rear Admiral Schroeder, "but the four ships of the first division which we took out Monday, and brought back the following night, were subjected to a series of drills and evolutions. I found that the measured mile, where the standardization tests would have to be run off, would interfere too much with the calibre practice, and decided that the calibre practice would have to have the right of way at all costs.

"The crews must get into trim for the target and battle practice off Virginia in August. We have not an hour to waste for this work of preparation and perfection. But we shall have to accomplish it somehow, and I guess we shall. Not a minute can be wasted, though.

"The showing made thus far in all departments is most gratifying, and we look for even greater success. This is an ideal ground for the work."

WHEN COAL AND WOOD ARE GONE—The SUNDAY AMERICAN tells how our industries will be run then.

SIMPLE CHANGE AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, July 15.—No ceremony of any kind marked the retirement of William Jewett Tucker, D.D., LL. D., from the presidency of Dartmouth College, a position he has held for sixteen years, today. He vacated his high office and his successor, Ernest Fox Nichols, stepped in and that was all that marked the change from the old to the new. Tribute was paid to the service President Tucker has rendered Dartmouth at the time his resignation was accepted.

STAGE FRIGHT DUMBS SINGER

NEW BEDFORD, July 15.—Having been stricken dumb while singing in a Boston moving picture theatre, Charles J. D. Pecquette, well known in musical circles of this city, is at his home here under the care of skilled physicians in an effort to regain his voice.

The young man was filling his first theatrical engagement, when on Monday, after completing one song and starting another, he suddenly lost his voice and since that time has been unable to utter a word.

WILD TAXI ON SCHOOL STREET

While a taxicab stood in front of the Hotel Genoa, on Province court, two men opened up the throttle and the machine dashed through the court, across School street and into the fence at City Hall, all but crushing two women and a man who were near.

The chauffeur was in the office of the hotel, collecting a fare. On information furnished by him the police arrested John G. Smith and William McNamara of New York. The chauffeur said that he saw them start the machine.

WANT PROOF THAT HE'S 113

BROCKTON, July 14.—A request has been received here and in Plymouth for proof of statements made by Captain Gideon Diamond that he is 113 years of age. Captain Goddard left this city and Plymouth some twenty years ago to engage in going to Oakland, Cal. He claims, it is reported, that he was born in Plymouth in 1796 and that he has lived under every President of the United States.

He says he fought in the Mexican war. He wrote a book when 106 and a second edition of it when 110. At a reception given to him when he was 107 he danced with a girl 100 years his junior. If his statements are found to be correct, an investigation is being made of the claim for longevity made by Captain Diamond.

TAKES BRIDE ON MOUNTAIN TOP

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 15.—The first wedding to take place on the summit of Uncanoonuc Mountain was celebrated when J. Brodie Smith, general manager of the Manchester Traction, Light & Power company, and Dr. Charlotte Dodd Stewarton, graduate of Tufts Medical School 1900, member of Massachusetts and New Hampshire Medical Societies, and since 1902 a successful practitioner in this city, were married in Smith's Summer cottage, clinging to the bretling brow of the old mountain.

The conservatory, affording abundant offering for the decorations, was nature's own, the laurel, which grows in such profusion in that vicinity, having been used to form a bower in the large living room.

LOAD OF HAY FIRED BY UNKNOWN JOKER

The thoughtless practical joke of an unknown man placed the life of John McGaughran and his six-year-old son in danger.

McGaughran was returning from North Cambridge. He went to Winchester with a load of hay and had almost reached his destination and was near the corner of Cottage Park avenue and Massachusetts avenue when someone threw a number of matches into the load of hay, which took fire, and both driver and son had a close call.

"The HILTON IDEA"

A word on the character of Hilton Clothes, the part they played in Tariff-on-Wool Question, and the Splendid Tribute they received from the Ways and Means Committee in the House in Washington and the House of Commons in London, England.

¶ The more exact and extensive your knowledge of fabrics, tailoring, style, fit and value, the greater will be your enthusiasm over Hilton Clothes.

¶ The less you know in detail of these things the greater is your need of the Hilton organization that does know and has in its own stocks the best the world affords in fabrics and in tailoring skill, and that can be depended upon to give unqualified satisfaction at the right price and at one profit.

¶ Hilton Clothes occupy an enviable position in the clothing world, having the proud distinction of being selected as the representative ready-made clothes in America in a debate before the Ways and Means Committee in the House at Washington on the superiority of American-made clothes for men.

¶ A Hilton Suit is also on exhibition at present in the House of Commons in London, England, a member of which is using it to demonstrate to this body of legislators the fact that England is years behind America in the production of fine ready-made clothes, and that a suit of such style and quality as the Hilton Company's would cost twice as much to produce in Great Britain as it does in the U. S.

¶ Our belief that Hilton Clothes are absolutely the best in America is justified when such universal recognition is accorded to them.

¶ If you are meditating the purchase of a suit, look for our announcement in this paper tomorrow, when we will show you how you can test the superiority of our clothes at very small cost to yourself.

Respectfully,

The HILTON Co.

POLICE FOIL PLOT TO FIRE TENEMENT

The police of the South Boston stations are to-day searching for the men who made a carefully planned attempt to burn a large tenement block at No. 14 West Sixth street, South Boston, in the centre of one of the most densly populated sections of the district.

The men were frustrated by Patrolman Moore of the Broadway Station. As the officer was passing along West Sixth street glancing casually through a cellar window, he saw the flickering of a match and then the flare of flames. The miscreants had applied the torch to some oiled material and then made their escape over a back yard fence.

Moore rushed into the house through the front entrance and descended to the cellar, rolling over the occupants, who were thrown into a state of alarm by the hurry of the policeman, to bring water. Moore picked up a pole that he found lying handy by, and until the arrival of the hucket brigade tried to beat out the flames. The fire had caught upon the building, however, and it necessitated half an hour's fight before it was put out.

'PEACH BASKET' SAVES LIFE

GREAT BARRINGTON, July 15.—A peach basket hat saved the life of Mrs. Frank Smith, wife of a Sheffield business man. Mrs. Smith was in an auto with Mr. and Mrs. rank G. Dixon of New York and Sheffield, and another machine crashed into theirs, overturning the auto and pinning Mrs. Smith's head to the ground. The machine was finally released and the other members of the party expected to pick her up dead, but they found that she had been but slightly injured. The peach basket hat had proven a most faithful head gear and she attributed the saving of her life entirely to that. Other members of the party escaped very serious injury. The Dixon auto was shattered.

GRAND OLD MAN OF VIRGINIA DEAD

NORFOLK, Va., July 15.—John Goode, aged eighty years, statesman, lawyer and soldier, affectionately known in late years as the "Grand Old Man of Virginia, died here following a stroke of paralysis suffered several weeks ago.

He was the sole survivor of the Virginia secession convention and said to be the oldest ex-member of the National Congress. He was a member of the Confederate Congress.

FISH CANNERIES REPORT SHORTAGE

EASTWORTH, Me., July 15.—Owing to the scarcity of fish, the American sardine canning industry is practically at a standstill. Ordinarily at this season the shoals of fish that furnish a supply for the Fall canning appear on the coast, but there is no evidence to indicate the arrival of the small herring on the shores nor is there any indication that they will appear in any great quantity, according to the fishermen.

WIRES TAPPED, CURRENT SOLD

What the police believe is an extensive conspiracy to defraud the Edison Electric Illuminating Company by tapping wires and diverting current away from meters is being investigated. One employe of the company is under arrest, and a number of North End and West End storekeepers are under suspicion. The company estimates its losses through this one employe at more than $2,000. The man arrested is Albert J. Thornton, of No. 51 North Beacon street, Brighton, who for ten months had been a meter reader. It was found that the meters at the power station showed an excess of consumption over the quantity of current totalled by the meters, and a watch was set which resulted in Thornton's arrest. BOSTON WOMAN IS ROBBED AT MAGNOLIA

GLOUCESTER, July 15.—A man, who stated that he wished to secure accommodations for a party, came to Magnolia and visited several hotels and shops. He later went to the residence of Mrs. B. M. Thornberg of Boston, whose Summer home is on Fuller street, and after he had departed it was discovered that a diamond ring, a valuable heirloom, was missing. The ring was found in a Cambridge pawnshop.

SUFFRAGETTE CAMPAIGN IN BATHING SUITS

By DOROTHY AMES.

The life of a militant suffragette isn't one sweet song in Boston any more than it is in London.

Five of Boston's best-known suffragettes went down to Nantasket, and all the way down the harbor talked to the most unresponsive and unsympathetic lot that it has been their misfortune to meet for a month.

Possibly women ought to vote—possibly all the suffragette speakers' assertions were true, but why bother about anything so weighty on such a beastly hot afternoon—that was the attitude of every blessed one of the excursionists.

To be sure, some signed their names to the monster petition which is to be presented to Congress next Winter, but they did it with an air of tolerance, as if they had been brought up to be polite and might possibly condescend to oblige.

The trip to Nantasket was one of a series of outings which the suffragettes are taking in an effort to spread the gospel of equal suffrage. Until a few months ago Boston suffragettes were as conservative as everything else in Boston, label is credited with being. But alas and alack, one of them journeyed to London and brought back some English methods.

Will Hustle for Recruits.

The result is the present policy of the women who want to vote. If recruits are not to be had voluntarily, the suffragettes have resolved to get out after them. Their plans so far have included the beaches and summer resorts, where the largest crowds congregate. Their Nantasket party included talks to the passengers on the boats and to the people on the beach itself.

Mrs. Richard Y. Fitzgerald led the little band, which included Miss Harriet L. Foley, Miss Gertrude Y. Cliff, Misses Mabel Ury and Miss Katherine Tyng. They were stationed on the forward deck and had two large yellow suffrage banners suitably inscribed with "Votes for Women" flying in the breeze.

But the suffragettes scarcely knew just how to begin—just how to get an excuse to talk. But leave it to a woman. Miss Foley asked a mild looking man if he wanted to hear why women should vote.

The mild-mannered man smiled and said he'd just as soon.

Miss Foley then invited Mrs. Fitzgerald to be spokesman, and she began with such talk loud enough so that all could hear.

Found One Recalcitrant.

After the forward deck had been canvassed, the suffragettes proceeded to the stern, where the passengers answered their appeal even less encouragingly. Miss Foley came across one strong anti-suffragist, who insisted on arguing the subject.

"Can you tell me of one woman who has become great at anything? Name one great woman architect or one great lawyer?" he said.

The answer was lost in the breeze, but Mrs. Fitzgerald, in a bright aside, said she wondered if he voted because he was an architect.

State reservations like Nantasket Beach do not offer very good opportunities for suffrage propaganda. The officials simply couldn't get a thing like a suffrage meeting to happen on their beach. The suffragettes would talk anywhere except on the reservation. That was interesting in the extreme, considering the fact that there was an alarming dearth of people on the other side of the reservation line.

Campaigning in Bathing Suits.

Suddenly Mrs. Fitzgerald had a brilliant idea. The ocean is one grand free place. If they wouldn't let them talk on land, they didn't care how wet they got so long as they had some people, if only bathers, to talk to. One seldom has any bathing suit handy, so Mrs. Fitzgerald and Miss Foley started off to hire two.

The other three suffragettes, very young and charming young women, were reported lost. We found them after a while consuming ice cream and munching sandwiches, as if it were church picnic rather than a suffrage crusade.

Suffragette speakers in bathing suits are a novelty which only Nantasket people have yet experienced. But they were a success.

Imagine one's next door neighbor in the surf suddenly beginning an address on the thousand-and-one reasons why women should no longer be deprived of the ballot. Imagine the futility of having suffrage arguments served up to you while you roll and jump and ride joyously on the oncoming billow. The suffragettes were accommodating. The bathers appreciated it. They listened, and quite a few signed among the people who signed the petition later on.

For sheer ingenuity and cleverness equal to the occasion, commend me to the Boston suffragettes. Their Nantasket excursion proved their ability to overcome any difficulty which may present itself.

HOTELS HIT HARD BY NEW LICENSE LAW

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 15.—Because the new liquor law limiting the number of saloons in the towns and cities of the State to one to every 500 population, allows only three licenses in the town of Narragansett, with its 1,500 residents, the big hotels of Narragansett Pier are taking out papers of incorporation as clubs on the basis on which to secure club liquor licenses.

BOSTON'S MAYOR AND WIFE BACK IN CITY

Mayor and Mrs. Hibbard have returned to Boston from Stockbridge, where Mrs. Hibbard broke her ankle some time ago while participating in the annual outing of the assessors and assistant assessors. CORPORATION TAX IS PUT UP TO TAFT

WASHINGTON, July 15.—A deadlock has been reached by the tariff conferees on the corporation tax and President Taft's services have been invoked as arbitrator.

Senator Aldrich and Chairman Payne carried the subject of disagreement to the White House. Payne departed after about an hour's talk, and left the President and Aldrich in close conference.

There is every reason for the statement that ultimately the House conferees will accept the tax. President Taft has committed himself irrevocably to it. Within the last few days he has said that he was bound to insist upon this tax in order to keep his faith with the progressive Senators who, at his request, abandoned the straight-out income tax to support the corporation tax.

Confirms Statement.

A month ago it was conclusively announced in the AMERICAN that in all cases where the conferees could not agree the matter in dispute would be referred to the President, whose decision would be binding on both parties. The reference to the President of the inheritance tax affirms this.

Involved in the dispute is probably the crux of the whole situation between the representatives of the Senate, the stand-pat men and the downward revisionists.

The House acceptance of the Senate independent upon concessions from Aldrich in the way of reduced duties. As between the inheritance tax, embraced in the Payne bill and the corporation tax, the House prefers the former. Senator Aldrich does not want either, but he was compelled to take the latter only as a straight-out income tax to pass the Senate, with a lively majority of the Republican members closely in touch with the people, occupying it. The Republican caucus would have voted for the corporation tax would have preferred the inheritance tax.

May Be Coalition.

If Aldrich goes back to the Senate with a bill that does not embody the compromise corporation tax the Republican progressives will at once organize with the Democrats to force the income tax upon him.

The tariff conferees were informed today that Attorney-General Wickersham, who has redrafted the corporation tax amendment since it was amended and adopted by the Senate, is ready to submit the amendment whenever the conferees are ready for it. Probably it will be called within a day or so.

That the opposition to the corporation tax feature imperils its adoption was indicated by a remark of Representative Mc-Call of Massachusetts, one of the conferees. He said that if the corporation tax amendment is accepted it will mean that the President is "pushing it with his entire weight."

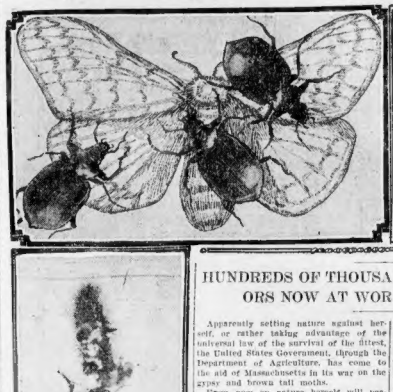
Army of Bugs Turned Loose on Moths



At top left—Female gypsy moth attacked by Calosoma beetle. This beetle is one of the largest parasites brought here.

At top, right—Japanese fly, called Apalantes. It lays its eggs on the backs of the caterpillar. The eggs hatch and the larvae, or grubs, burrow into the body of the caterpillar and devour it.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF EXTERMINATORS NOW AT WORK IN BAY STATE.

Apparently setting nature against herself, or rather taking advantage of the universal law of the survival of the fittest, the United States Government, through the Department of Agriculture, has come to the aid of Massachusetts in its war on the gypsy and brown tail moths.

From now on nature herself will perform the work of extermination, which all the devices of men during ten years have failed to accomplish. For the first time in the long campaign against these pests hope is held out of eventually destroying them.

The method used by the government is war pure and simple, but the war of one insect on another. The world has been ransacked for natural enemies of the moths. Hundreds of thousands of insects, some so small that the naked eye cannot see them, are being turned loose against the invaders. New species are arriving every day. Scientists are watching the results.

At the Massachusetts Gypsy Moth Laboratory in Melrose Highlands the work is in charge of trained men from the Bureau of Entomology, a branch of the Department of Agriculture. Dr. Charles Howard, chief of the bureau, directs the work. W. F. Fiske is the local superintendent and he is assisted by six men from Washington and twelve furnished by the State.

So far Dr. Howard has collected forty species of insects that feed on the eggs and larvae of the moths. The largest is the Calosoma beetle, which is about an inch long and beautifully colored. This comes from France and Germany. It feeds on the caterpillar of the moth as a spider does on a fly.

The flies which the government has imported are all parasites, and there is a strong resemblance in the way they act. Three species may be taken as typical.

The Apalates comes from Japan and is one-fiftieth of an inch long. It lays its eggs on the back of the caterpillar and the eggs work their way inside the caterpillar where they develop into grubs and devour it. Then they come out and become flies.

The Blepharipas lays its eggs on the leaves of trees and the caterpillar comes along and swallows them. The eggs then go through the same routine as those of the Apatalies.

In the case of the Magna Corona the female flies lay the eggs already hatched into the caterpillars no thicker. The grubs burrow through the skin of the caterpillars and feed. Then they come out, leaving the caterpillar dead, and spin cocoons, from which the flies issue later.

These processes are carefully watched at the laboratory. When habits of the insects are definitely ascertained the parasites are turned loose to prey on the moths. It is believed that these parasites perish in the winter. The work of the experts is now directed to making these flies permanent residents, in order that the gypsy and brown tail moths may be driven out for good.

NORTH SHORE GIRLS GREET HELEN TAFT

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

A number of the younger society women of Boston were at the first social function to mark the visit of President Taft and his family to the North Shore. Mrs. L. Z. Leiter of Chicago was the hostess. Some of the Bostonians who met Miss Helen Taft were Miss Eleanora Sears, Miss Lucy Blair, Miss Mary Amory, Miss Lyman, and the Misses Grace and Margaret Thomas. Many of the guests were old friends and acquaintances of Miss Taft. Among these were Miss Caroline Nanuce, daughter of the Brazilian ambassador; Miss Dorothy Williams of Washington, a sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter, and a house guest at the Leiter villa; Mrs. H. J. Coolidge, and Miss Faith Bingham.

IN SUIT, MARK TWAIN YIELDS TO FRIENDSHIP

NEW YORK, July 15.—Mrs. Ralph W. Ashcroft, nee Lyon, former secretary of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), returned to this country yesterday on the Cunarder Carmania in haste to see her former employer regarding his writ of attachment against her furbisher in Redding, Ct. It was this furbisher that the humorist gave Mrs. Ashcroft as a wedding present, and his writ of attachment was said to be due to his discovery of irregularities in her accounts.

Coincident with the landing of Mrs. Ashcroft came the report from Redding of the withdrawal of the suit of attachment by Clemens and a curious and interesting story of the influence which moved him. This influence, in brief, was said to be a wealthy New Yorker, who gave ago had been instrumental in having Asheroft's father, an English clergyman, come to this city. After the fuss Mr. Ashcroft's rival his New York patron is said to have built a church for him.

For this reason it is now said the friendly interposition of the New Yorker is made in behalf of the son of his old friend's son and the latter's bride, in order that their home may be saved.

Mr. Clemens and the New Yorker are said to have had several conferences over the question of the attachment, and the former agreed to withdraw the suit.

Blames Clemens's Daughter.

Mrs. Ashcroft had nothing to say of this reported quarrel yesterday, nor did she give a hint of the alleged wealthy friend of her husband who had interposed. But in a statement through her interview that she had the cause of the suit at the door of Clemens's daughter. "It was too astounding that I hadn't really believe it. Of course, I started for New York at once. I cannot even her mother's stand why Mr. Clemens took this action, though I believe a ran enlighten on any misunderstanding that has occurred."

HUSBAND HURT, WOMAN RAN CAR

When her husband's ribs were broken by the skidding of his automobile, Mrs. John V. Kelly of No. 5 Lindville terrace, Rochester, took the steering gear and drove rapidly to the City Hospital, where Mr. Kelly received attention. Mrs. Kelly narrowly escaped injury in the accident.

GINGLES GIRL DENOUNCED BY OLD EMPLOYER

CHICAGO, July 15.—David S. Thornton, one of the leading business men of Belleville, Ont., caused a sensation in the trial of Ella Gingles by his appearance on the witness stand in the State's behalf and disclosed secrets in the life of the girl which the defense had constantly combatted.

The girl was painted in an unenviable light by Thornton. He said that she was not the innocent maid the defense had pictured her.

He told of having caught her in the company of a man, of having seen her kiss a man, of finding him and herself locked in in an unbecoming manner." He swore that she was a girl who would not tell the truth under all circumstances, and declared he knew her under the name of "Ella Raymond."

Before Assistant State Attorney Short finished with the witness he had got from the record testimony to the effect that Ella Gingles had suffered an illness that would make her assertion of innocence entirely false; that she had compelled herself to be photographed in her mistress' evening gown, a fact she also denied under oath; that she stole table linen from her mistress, another fact that she denied under oath; that she consorted with men in an unseemly manner, and that she was generally given to lying and deception.

TELEPHONE BOX THIEVES HELD

Caught in the act of breaking open a pay telephone cash box at Rowe's Wharf, Melvin F. Underwood and Charles A. Farrington of Lynn were arrested by a policeman who had been watching them. They had $30, most of which is believed to have been taken from the box. Telephone thefts have been frequent of late, and the police believed that Underwood and Farrington have committed a number of them, as several locks of the kind used in the pay stations were in their pockets.

WOMEN SAVE TOWN IN FIRE

MATFIELD, July 15.—A score of women who formed a fire brigade of their own when flames threatened their homes saved this town from being wiped out by a forest fire. The onward march of the flames, which, started by a spark from a passing locomotive, had spread rapidly over fifteen acres of field and forest, was checked and the fire brought under control at the place where the women made their stand. A corps of men waged a losing fight against the fire until the women, led by Mrs. Levi Nute, joined them.

CURTISS MAKES RECORD FLIGHT

NEW YORK, July 15.—A remarkable aeroplane flight—one of the best, in fact, ever seen in this part of the country—was made near Mineola, L. I., by Glenn H. Curtiss. Like a great, fast-flying bird his machine soared over the Long Island potato plains, wheeling to right and left as he willed, and making several complete turns.

Curtiss covered two circuits of the plains, a distance roughly estimated at a trifle less than four miles in five minutes and fifteen seconds, a speed of forty-five miles an hour. Only for a trifling mishap he said when he came down, he could have covered a much greater distance.

If Curtiss is able to find a period of calm to-day he will attempt the most ambitious flight of his career. "I intend to fly twenty-five miles," he said, "if possible, and from all apparent indications the machine looks good for it."

Van Camp's is Natural Milk
Condensed Milk is Not

This is how condensed milk differs from Van Camp's—in cost and quality and service. Please learn the facts, then judge which you want to use.

Many people still cling to condensed milk because they don't know why Van Camp's has displaced it.

They pay twice as much as those who use Van Camp's, and they get but half of the service.

So we deem it wise, in the interest of all, to publish these important facts.

Nothing But Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk with two-thirds the water evaporated.

Nothing whatever is added—no sugar, no starch, no preservative. Nothing is subtracted save water.

Our evaporating plants are located in six states, and all of them are close to our dairies.

The fresh milk is there placed in a vacuum. And a very moderate heat, because of the vacuum, throws off the water in steam.

We reduce the milk until it shows 8 per cent butter fat—about 26 per cent total solids.

The milk is sterilized after the cans are sealed. We do nothing else to preserve it.

Six Cents per Quart

The tall can of Van Camp's contains sixteen ounces of evaporated milk—a full pint and full pound.

The can costs ten cents when you buy by the can, and less when you buy a case.

If you replace the water which we take out, you have whole rich milk at about six cents per quart.

It is cheaper than raw milk, because the cost of raw milk lies largely in the cost of daily delivery.

Condensed Milk is Nearly Half Sugar

Condensed milk may be also evaporated somewhat, for the purpose of reducing the bulk. But then sugar is added—from 40 to 50 per cent.

That was the old way of preserving milk before sterilization came in to displace it. And makers are very glad to have users cling to it, because the sugar cheapens the milk.

But remember this: About half that you pay for condensed milk buys nothing but preservative sugar.

A 10-cent can of condensed milk contains only 12 ounces. A 10-cent can of Van Camp's contains 16 ounces—just one-third more.

Then, nearly half the condensed milk is sugar, for which you are paying twice what sugar is worth. Think what those differences mean in a year.

Another Waste

But here is another waste more important still:

Condensed milk, being sweetened, is fit only for table uses. You must use other milk for your cooking.

Van Camp's goes twice as far on the table, because it is twice as rich. And for cooking it is the best milk in America.

In milkman's milk you rarely get the whole milk. The butter fat rises and the solids fall. The milk that you use for cooking is hardly a half milk, usually.

In Van Camp's you get the whole rich milk, just as it came from the cow. You get all of the butter fat, all of the solids. Van Camp's gives to milk dishes a richness and flavor which you never get from raw milk.

Once prove this fact and you'll never go back to the milkman. Nor will you use sugared milk.

A Cow in the Kitchen

Van Camp's means a cow in your kitchen. It means milk or cream for any purpose ready when you want it.

It means great economy, for it is cheaper than raw milk and it involves no waste.

It means such delicious milk dishes as you never can make without it.

Think of having twice the price for condensed milk and getting only half of the service.

Van Camp's Milk is sold in 5 and 10 cent cans—at your grocer's. The 10-cent can is the more economical and grocers give discounts on 10-cent cans.

The 10-cent can contains 16 ounces while all 5-cent cans contain only 6 ounces. It is put up at our dairies in six states by the Van Camp Packing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Diabetes Cured Gained 30 lbs.

Mr. Chas. F. Clark, a well-known citizen of Springfield, Mass., who suffered for three years from Diabetes and tried many remedies in vain, says that Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure has permanently cured him.

On June 14, 1909, Mr. Clark writes: "I was taken sick with Diabetes about three years ago. I tried different doctors and remedies, but found no relief until after I began taking Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure. I have used four or five bottles and have been on a diet, eating only foods which were recommended on your circular. I am feeling perfectly well, and have none of the symptoms of Diabetes. I do not pass any sugar whatever. I wish to thank you for the benefit I have received from using your medicine. I also intend to recommend your medicine to anyone afflicted with Diabetes, and you may use this letter as a testimonial for publication in your advertising.

I weighed two hundred and eighteen pounds before taking sick and dropped to one hundred and thirty-one pounds, but now I have gained thirty pounds since taking your medicine." CHARLES F. CLARK, 38 Princeton Street, Springfield, Mass.

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed that they began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

DUKE'S COUSIN CLAIMS ARREST ALL A MISTAKE

PROVIDENCE, July 15.—In an interview in the Washington County Jail at Kingston, R. I., to-day, Mandeville de Warigny Hall, nephew of Louis warigny Hoffman of Paris, and cousin to the Duke de Villabrosa, said that his arrest on the charge of passing worthless checks was the result of the accumulation of a three weeks' jag which began at Atlantic City.

He stated that the mistake that has landed him in jail was committed in an effort to keep his real name from being disclosed.

"I signed the name of Charles W. Stevens never dreaming that there was any such person," said Hall. "I started to [illegible] friend by that name—[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the one from the name I signed. The result was 'Charles W. Stevens.' It was all a coincidence. That started the trouble, for when I presented a check with my real name on it to Colonel Hall, proprietor of the hotel, he said he would cash my own personal check, I simply signed the check as I did the hotel register and that's how it all came about. I expected to come back and make good. I will do it yet.

"I expect my bondsman at any hour. Several of my friends are working for me now. The officials that arrested me treated me unfairly. They told me they'd let me off with a fine if I convicted my real name, and I did. Then they went and had me bound over to the Grand Jury."

Hall denied he ever was married to Vida L. Whitmore, the chorus girl. He said Florence Teall of Rochester, from whom he recently got divorced, was the only wife he ever had. And he says he doesn't want to get married right away again. "It took me three years to get over of the last one and it was no fun," was his comment.

The Duke's kin said the papers were all wrong about that arrest and prosecution in Paris for obtaining an automobile with a worthless check. He says it was a civil suit, and that he won it.

"Virginia Marshall, who is quoted as having got a bogus check from me," said the prisoner, "is away off. I guess she's looking for a ruse to salve out of the notoriety she's got."

Hall has the whole jail to himself and takes his predicament philosophically.

STRONG DRY GOODS NINES WILL MEET

The baseball team of the Houghton & Dutton Co. Athletic Association, the winners of the only cup won by any team in the New England Dry Goods League, has arranged with the team of R. H. Macy & Co. of New York for a series of games. The Macy team is classed as one of the best in the New York Dry Goods League, and that of the great Boston house is reputed one of the best amateur nines in New England. The first game will be played at the American League grounds, Huntington avenue, on Saturday at 2 o'clock. With two such teams in the field, the public is assured of a game well worth seeing, even to those who are in the habit of attending professional games. The contest will be a friendly, although a spirited and enthusiastic one, as both teams have incurred a large expense in arranging for the series. They bespeak a generous patronage from lovers of the game.

USE THE AMERICAN TICKETS AT BEACH

Down on Nantasket Beach, where the cool waves are ever rolling in, SUNDAY AMERICAN readers are having the time of their lives with coupons presented at the leading shows of the resort. At the Lyric Theatre, Grant's Roller Coaster and the old Mill they get one ten-cent attraction for a nickel and the free ticket clipped from the AMERICAN. At the Flying Horses they receive two rides for a dime and a nickel. Join the Sunday American Outing Club next week.

LOTS OF FREE FUN AT LEXINGTON PARK

These are great days at Lexington Park where the people are flocking by thousands to escape the terrific heat and see the menagerie denizens cavort. There are swings, picnic grounds, boxgrass and flying horses. SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club is assuming greater proportions each week. Most everything is free in the big park, and the AMERICAN coupon gives admission at the gate two days a week. Get next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

CAPITAL TOO HIGH.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Over-capitalization is charged against many of the independent telephone companies by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in a circular which it is said to-day to its stockholders. Many of the other companies, the circular says, although they do not operate any large proportion of the toll lines, are capitalized at high figures.

COMRADES

SPURNS WOMAN IN DEATH CASE

WATSEKA, Ill., July 15.—While his alleged faithless wife was held behind the bars of a cell in Jail, J. S. Sayler, the banker, who was slain on Sunday by Dr. W. R. Miller, was buried here.

At about the same time a letter went from Dr. Miller to his wife in Blairsville, Pa., that it was she alone that he loved. Thus, while her own husband was being buried, Mrs. Sayler found herself deserted also by the man whom she is charged with aiding to slay her husband.

While nearly every adult resident of Crescent City attended the burial, following a quiet funeral of the slain vice-president of the First National Bank, Mrs. Sayler was not allowed to attend, although she begged the sheriff for permission to do so.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT WONDERLAND

The Wonderland attendance has doubled with the opening of the great, free, outdoor production of "Cinderella," presented nightly upon the specially constructed stage in the centre of the board walk. Dainty Irene Martin, late of the Castle Square company, has the title role and the stately Lulu Strater of Hap Ward's "The Promoters" is the Prince Charming of the company. They are splendidly supported by a big company of character actors and singing and dancing girls. The production is one of bewildering beauty, with fascinating color and lighting effects.

The spectacle is presented promptly at 8:30 every evening, Sundays included. The other big park shows and rides are running at their best. The admittance in the big corner of the season. Children under twelve, accompanied by adults, are admitted free up to 6 p. m., and combination tickets giving ten park shows and admission at the gate are sold outside and inside the park for fifty cents.

The usual magnificent array of free tickets will be published next Sunday, one for park admission and one for the vaudeville, absolutely free, while the other twelve half-fare tickets are for the leading five and ten-cent attractions, two five-cent admissions or one ten-cent admission for coupon and five cents. Many thousands of SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets were received at Wonderland Monday and Tuesday, and a much greater attendance of the Sunday American Outing Club is looked for next week. Order your SUNDAY AMERICAN in advance.

COUGHED UP PIN AFTER FIVE YEARS

NAUGATUCK, Ct., July 13.—During a fit of coughing Lena Schmidt ejected a hairpin she swallowed five years ago. She was coughing with it by her mouth when she swallowed it, and all efforts to remove it had been futile.

"UPLIFT MAN," URGES LAYMAN

That the churches of this country should raise strong, rugged, God-fearing men as well as money is the advice of Eugene N. Camp, chairman of the Church Laymen's Union, to the classes being conducted in St. John's Chapel under the direction of the Episcopal Summer School.

"The church has missionary societies to raise money," said Camp. "Why not have missionary societies to raise men? We send money to China. Why not send men to Chicago, next to New York, the greatest foreign and the greatest home mission field in the world? I have spoken only of work at home. That is because America is both a field and a force. Missions are not in China. The church is there. Missions are in the hearts of Christians or they aren't Christians. The places to begin missionary work is where missions are."

WHITE CITY HAS HOST OF VISITORS

White City, Worcester, the beautiful inclosed park on the shore of Lake Quinsigamond, entertained a big delegation of the Sunday American Outing Club last Monday and Tuesday. The free ticket plan in catching on in Worcester County, and next week the attendance will double. No park of its size excels White City in point of beauty and quality of attractions, and it is a favorite resort for Central Massachusetts and Northern Connecticut. Its shows and rides are among the best to be found in any Summer park. Most of these can be enjoyed on Monday or Tuesday next at a greatly reduced expense by the use of the free tickets published in next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN. Admission to the park is always free. The theatre and "Paradise," a wonderful spectacular production with fire dancers and wierd illusions, are absolutely free, while the mammoth chutes, scenic railway, airships, jungle and flying horses may be enjoyed at half price by the use of the SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons.

Summer Troubles!

For the many sudden stomach and bowel ills so common in hot weather, nothing is so safe, agreeable or speedily effective as genuine

Sanfords Ginger

If you have a cramp or pain, a sense of chill with aching muscles or cold extremities, an uneasiness in the stomach or bowels, a feeling of nervousness, wakefulness or exhaustion, Sanford's Ginger will give prompt relief and may prevent a serious illness.

Taken hot, on the spot, it is worth a dozen far-away doctors.

Look for the Owl Trade Mark on the wrapper, lest you get a cheap, worthless or dangerous substitute. Forty years the standard of purity, flavor and strength. A delicious combination of ginger, aromatics and French brandy. Sold by all druggists and grocers.

COSSACKS LAY DOWN ARMS TO AID THE REBELS

TEHERAN, July 15.—The Royalist forces apparently have had enough of fighting and are prepared to admit the supremacy of the Nationalists. The secretary of the Russian legation arrived at the Mellies building and in behalf of General Liakhoff submitted written proposals for the surrender of the Cossacks under his command. He asked first that the Nationalists should cease attacking the Cossacks; that the Cossacks should be allowed to continue service under the future Persian government and that their safety be guaranteed if they lay down their arms.

Sipahdar and Sardarasad replied that the officers and the Cossacks were free to return to their homes as soon as they surrendered their arms; that their safety would be guaranteed as far as possible, and that, as the constitutional government required trained troops, the Cossacks would be taken into service.

The action of General Liakhoff followed a long day of fighting, during which, however, little damage seems to have been done.

BOY RUNAWAY LIED 10 DAYS IN BIG BOX

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 15.—After living days in a dry goods box in a blind alley, Abe Stain, twelve years old, has been found here. He had been threatened with a whipping by his mother for disobeying her and testifying against two men who slapped him, and ran away.

FULL QUERY INTO CHINESE ORGY ORDERED

A thorough investigation of the circumstances attending the picnic of the Chinese Merchants' Association at Peddock's Island, with presumptions it appears for them to found, has been ordered by the selectmen of Hull. The startling bid before them a report made by Chief of Police Reynolds and policeman John Smith, who had come to Boston to interview a number of persons who were on the island on the day of the picnic. What they found, they said, was sufficient to condemn that action should be taken.

What they found in Boston was not exactly what they found on the island, Selectman Smith. They said, however, that they had interviewed Chinese as well as white persons as to the incidents of the outing.

The investigation will be open, and the witnesses will have an opportunity to testify to what they saw.

While the Hull authorities are acting, there will be an investigation of the conditions of Chinatown by members of the Women's Municipal Society and the Industrial and Rescue League, operating there. Their object is to prevent, if possible, the consorting of white women and Chinese. On the investigating committee are the Meadmes S. E. Stevens, L. E. Brown, M. L. Jones, May J. Robinson and Harriette R. Farrar.

BOXMAKERS AT NAHANT.

The New England Paper & Wooden Box Manufacturers' Association came down to Bass Point for its semi-annual gathering and a fish dinner was served at the Bass House. There were nearly 100 members present.

YOUTH FIRES BULLET INTO BABY'S BRAIN

Pointing a revolver straight at Annie Pasquale, thirteen months old, as she was being wheeled in a baby coach on Broadway, Revere, Fred Hegner, seventeen years old, pulled the trigger. A report rang out and the little one fell back unconscious with a bullet in her brain.

Bystanders say that Hegner, just as he fired, said: "Watch me shoot the kid." Hegner said that he didn't know that there was a cartridge in the revolver, and that he was only fooling.

The little girl is the daughter of Humbert Pasquale of No. 1231 Broadway, Revere. She was being wheeled in the coach by her sister, nine years old. The baby, although small, sprang at Hegner and clung to him until a Metropolitan park policeman placed him under arrest.

The wounded child was hurried to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was found that the bullet had entered her brain. Her recovery is not expected.

Hegner, whose home is at No. 37 Pitt street, Revere, is locked up at the Revere police station, on the charge of assault with intent to kill.

There was only one cartridge in the revolver, the Revere police have the evidence of witnesses of the shooting, but have declined to reveal it until Hegner is arraigned in the Chelsea District Court.

HUNT'S BODY FOUND.

STURBIS, Mich., July 15.—The body of Claude Hunt was recovered from the bottom of Lower Lake, about 100 feet from the spot where the body of Miss Mary Davey of Chicago was found on Monday.

FINANCE BOARD TAKES ADVISER

Michael J. Sughrue, legal adviser to Mayor Fitzgerald's Finance Commission, has been appointed counsel to the new commission. Recently Mr. Sughrue has done some expert special work for Mayor Hibbard, and for seventeen years he served as assistant district attorney. He will not receive a salary, but will be paid for actual services rendered.

The commission is still engaged in a hearing on the gas street lighting contract, which has developed into a contest between owners of competing patent burners.

DOUBLE HEADER FOR RED SOX AND BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—The Red Sox and the Browns do a double performance at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, owing to the fact that yesterday's contest was postponed on account of rain.

The cancellation was perturbing to the speed boys, as they figured the Browns would be easy picking, and were sore over losing the chance of adding another victory to their list of wins.

The Red Sox have a chance of climbing into a berth at second place to-day, tied with the Athletics. If the Boston men can both games of the double be cinched the Naps tie a knot in the White Elephant's trunk at Cleveland. Lake's crew will share second position honors with the Athletics, each with an average of .500.

But on the other hand, if the Red Sox should lose both games and Cleveland should win, the crimsoned hosiery ones will find themselves dropped into fourth place with an average of .479 while the Naps would rise a peg in the league race by stepping into third place on an average of .493. An even break for the Red Sox would keep their position unchanged.

The speed merchants will have to go a whole lot to get away with both games this afternoon, as their one-time side partner, Bill Dinneen, is down on the coast to pitch one of the games.

The last three games Mr. William has pitched have been shutouts, not a run being made off him by the twenty-seven batters which, taken all in all, shows that Willie is traveling a few notches about the stage and will have much to say about who is going to walk off a winner in the game he twirls.

Graham probably will do the honors for the Browns in the other contest, but Hal Waddell will not face the Red Sox, as his wrist has swelled to the fitness its ordinary size, putting the eccentric gent "hors de combat" for the present.

Young Pape and Joe Wood, the kiddo slant artists, will come in for a chance to duplicate their performance of the double-header on the Cleveland home grounds, and Lake is banking on a double win.

CANTILLON DENIES HE HAS RESIGNED

DETROIT, July 15.—Out of Cleveland yesterday came a story to the effect that Joe Cantillon had resigned as manager of Washington, to take effect on August 1. The story further said that "Jiggs" Donohue had been suggested by Cantillon as his successor, and would be appointed.

In response to this Cantillon said that he knows of no reason why he should resign and that he has no intention of quitting under fire.

DOVES MAKE ANOTHER TRY AT THE CUBS

There are still two more games to be played with those terrible bears from Chicago before they leave our dear old Boston, and one of these will be the attraction this afternoon at the local National League park.

Every day the chances of the Doves beating the Cubs look smaller and then some, for the Cubs have easy picking with the Bostonians as the result of the present series shows Cubs, 8 games, Doves, 0. That is a sorry looking count, but it is the naked truth, which very often leaves a stinging sensation in its wake.

It appears that Bowerman had better get busy and put a little pepper to his men. The infield is getting very sloppy in its work and improvement should be shown by nearly all the fellows. Yesterday's game was lost by ball errors, and there should be a sudden stop to this, if the Boston team is hoping to climb somewhere near the Dodgers and get out of the last hole, which place it is filling very gracefully.

Just at present the Doves are hoping that Lumley's bunch of ball players will keep right on losing, at least until the Cubs leave us, and then maybe the Doves can step over a few pictures on the Cincinnati Reds and close up the gap.

Tuckey, who worked in yesterday's game, showed that he could still pitch fairly good ball, and should with more practice in the stable of ball players as well, it seems that there should be less noise made by the visiting team in the apple log the timber.

Forest Mere, the new member of the Dove outfield in the game and was greeted with a bunch of base hits that made him look like Ty Cobb's successor. He didn't belong in big league company, but still he hasn't had a good trial since joining the Doves, and should get it very soon, as big Joe Connolly has put up a stump as to the twirling end of the debate.

Bowerman has no more idea of who to work this afternoon, he says, than a rabbit, for the pitchers are going so badly that it's a sort of tossup.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

* * *

Beaumont, on his first trip to the plate, swatted one on the beak. It looked good for at least a single but Hoffman got it on the line.

* * *

Coffey is certainly the lightning fast kid. He made a swell play on Archer's slow hit to the third base and by a sweet throw nailed his man.

* * *

Becker binged one on the besser and it looked like another of his long triples, but Schulte made a nice catch of it after running nearly to the right field bleachers.

* * *

Becker was robbed of at least two hits during the afternoon by remarkable catches. He hits them hard and on the line and is dangerous all the time.

* * *

All three Cubs were retired, Tuckey to Stem, in the fifth inning.

* * *

Brown certainly had the Doves guessing and did not allow a hit for five innings. However, the Doves got together and tied up the score. Thomas singled in the seventh and Beau followed with a double, scoring Roy. Stem sided and then Sweeney made a nice double putting Ginger across.

* * *

The Cubs' third run was a cheap affair as it was scored off a couple of bad errors by Starr and Sweeney after a merged single had been made.

* * *

Tuckey kept the Cubs' hits well scattered and allowed six during the eight rounds that he officiated. Tuckey was taken out to let Bates bat in the eighth round. Mere, who finished the game, pitched like Hogan's goat and was found for four hits, and these, with the error, netted five runs.

* * *

With Coffey on first in the fifth round, Chance pulled off a bull play. Sam took an easy one to him and Chance could have had an easy double play, but he dropped the ball when about to take the throw and barely saved himself an error by touching first ahead of Sam.

* * *

The work of Kane and Klem seems to please the fans more than any done by indictor handlers seen at the South End grounds this season. Of course, each has made the usual amount of bad decisions, but as a whole they are pretty good.

* * *

Pape had an off day in the field, both errors giving the Cubs an easy victory.

* * *

Mr. Sheckard was a busy person yesterday. He had three hits out of four trips to the plate and pulled off a sacrifice.

* * *

Bates, who has been out of the game for a couple of weeks, took Tuckey's turn at the bat in the eighth and managed to fan.

* * *

Three of the Doves' seven hits were two-baggers.

* * *

* * *

GOLD WATCH FOBS FOR TRACK WINNERS

A grand athletic tournament, under the auspices of the Columbus Club of Dorchester, will take place at Grand Street Grounds on Saturday, July 21, at 2 p. m. The events are as follows: Handicap, 100 yards, 440 yards, one mile; one mile run; running high jump; running hop, step and jump, or two hops and jump; three-legged sack race; also an open team race.

Solid gold (fourteen karat) watch fobs will be given to first; gold filled watch fobs to thirds in each event, excepting fobs to thirds in each event, excepting the team race where gold filled fobs will be given.

Games are sanctioned by N. E. A. A. A. Entries close July 20 with Joseph McNamara, No. 4 Valentine street, Roxbury, Mass.

HORSE COULDN'T WIN.

Charles Welland of New York city has sold the black gelding Westworth (2:04½) to George M. Ford of Hartford, Ct., and it is the report that the latter purchased the trotter to race against Ward M. (2:09½). If so, he got stung the first time out, as Ward M. proved all the candy.

BOSTON Y. C. GETS OX FOR ANNUAL CRUISE

The Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency has chartered the steamer Ox to the Boston Yacht Club to serve as towboat and dispatch boat to the club fleet on the club's annual cruise from Marblehead to Camden, Me., July 17 to 24.

WAIVERS ARE ASKED FOR FOUR DOVES

The long threatened shake up in the ranks of the Doves has started at last, and several of the familiar faces will soon be seen here no more.

Waivers have been asked for on four of the players who have failed to do much to help the team along in its race, and it is said that several new men will soon make their appearance on the Walpole street lot.

The men who have been offered to the other clubs of the league are "Bad Bill" Dahlen, Beck, and Pitchers Lindaman and McCarthy. Dahlen is the only real old timer, and is undoubtedly the best man in the bunch, but he doesn't seem to like to play in Boston, unless he can manage the club.

Last year he had an offer from the Brooklyn club to manage the team, but Bowerman, knowing that he was able to keep good ball players with him, pulled a cold one on Dahlen, and told the Doves manager at the time that he might work for them if he did not bring up to Brooklyn, and there is no division or opinion on the question of whether or not he has caused the threatened grief.

Dahlen will be grabbed up by some club and there is every reason to believe that he will make a good showing, for in spite of his nearly twenty years at the game.

Beck played first base during the early part of the season, but has developed into a rooming a cracker-jack. He is a good hitter and an excellent fielder, but got down on his hitting and base running. He has taken a drop in the Eastern League club for a season or two and the experience may make him a good league player.

Lindaman does not seem able to get going right, but is far from being down and out. McCarthy last season was one of the most promising pitchers in the league, but has not been able to pitch winning ball since being injured last season by a slide to the plate in which his ankle and one arm were injured.

One of the new men who is soon to make his appearance is a youngster named Siner, who was secured by Manager Bowerman from the Peoria team, and is said to be a star infielder, second base being his favorite position.

He was to have joined the Doves last week, but was kept away by the serious illness of his father. President John Dovey went to Peoria last week to get Siner here as soon as possible and it is likely he will be here before the end of the week.

Geoffrey, the young Fordham College boy who has succeeded Dahlen at short, is giving a good account of himself in every game, and bids fair to develop into a star player by the end of the season. He is hitting the ball well and has shown himself to be a steady and a quick thinker.

Joe Thomas, another of the newcomers, has carried off the batting honors since joining the club, and may be looked on as a permanent fixture on the team. He will likely be kept as a utility man, as he is not likely that either of the three regular outfielders will be benched.

There has been considerable talk of Harry Lumley calling Bennington, but there is still likelihood of this being done, as he is a valuable man to any club on account of his batting ability.

Baseball News and Notes

Orth Collins, right fielder for the Buffalo club, has been suspended for ten days by President Lodge of the management for more money, and before a game last week the Bisons were step of players, made a demand for more salary.

* * *

Pitcher Marquard, of the Giants, is quoted as saying: "If McGraw would let me alone I believe I could pitch better. He signals me to pitch to what he wants and I get confused. Then Bresnahan will take a hand and finally Devlin. Between the three of 'em I go to the air."

* * *

Catcher Doolin denies the published stories that he proposes to retire at the end of the season, but intimates that the Phillies will have to make better inducements for him to stay here next season, as otherwise he will go into business with his father-in-law.

* * *

Tommy Leach is a player you don't hear much about, but what a great player he is. He shines on the infield as well as the outfield. His batting has been timely this season, and he has come getting the long hits with men on the bases.

* * *

Baseball players and experts on the technicalities of the national game agree that a decision by Umpire Clarence Owens at Louisville on Saturday, which gave Pelty the benefit of a close race, is unique. Pelty was at bat for Louisville with two on bases and Mitchell pitcher for Toledo, after a conference with Catcher Land, decided to give Pelty his base. Three balls were thrown to Pelty and before the fourth was pitched Land deliberately stepped out of the box, received an exceptionally wide throw from Mitchell and touched Pelty with the ball between third base and home. Pelty was declared out and Louisville's winning run. The rule on which the decision was rendered was passed several years ago and is said never to have been called into force before.

* * *

Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans has the laugh on some of the other baseball managers who said all kinds of hard things about the way he had been doing anything extra with his pitching staff. Mack's star twirler, Jack Coombs, who was secured for nothing by Barry was taken from Holy Cross, and Barry, who has proved one of the best men Mack ever had, Collins, was secured in a trade for Lolivett and Litschi.

* * *

Johnny Evers has broken loose at bat and pounding his way up among the sluggers, has become the hitting sensation of the National League.

* * *

Charles W. Murphy, baseball scout of the Chicago Cubs, denies that he has closed, in behalf of the Cubs, for Walter Justus, a semi-professional pitcher with Lancaster in the Ohio State League. Murphy says he died Justus up recently and refused to the conclusion that he needs more scholastic training. Justus, who is said to be a pitcher of great promise, has been approached by Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, on a number of occasions, but Murphy left for Chattanooga, where he will remain with the team the first half of the pennant and season.

* * *

Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, never talks about the future, but does everything in his power to see that he keeps them in his present leaders.

* * *

Strange to say, however, the Athletics have been playing to comparatively small crowds at home, which is said to be due to the fact that the street railway accommodations are inadequate. The street cars are said to be overcrowded by men who are absolutely sick and disgusted with the ownership of the Philadelphia National league club.

* * *

Baseball in Cleveland just now presents the interesting spectacle of the extremes of age in the limelight. That is, extremes of age in performance of sports. Billy Keane, the youthful trainer of the Athletics, is a wonder on account of his youth, and old Cy Young on account of his years. Old Cy was playing ball when Keane was in his cradle, and the most he has the shortest game as Cy has, but will be pitching good ball along about 1925.

* * *

Jimmy Burke, who left the Louisville team in the fight for the pennant last year until the last week, is in his native state with Charlie Carr, manager of the Indianapolis team. Charlie told Jimmy what to do, but being a manager himself, had some ideas of his own. When he attempted to carry out what he was told he would figure out additional ones while adorning the bench—at his own request.

* * *

Every time that Joe O'Brien steps into a big league team they have him trying to purchase a ball park with the view of establishing an American Association team. Now he is handling these very glaring headlines to the effect that he had already purchased the Toledo franchise, but the next day the ultimate converted it into a switching yard.

* * *

Nothing loath shot of Frank Farrell of the Highlanders, Bill Dahlen, Cubs' baseball manager, has been offered $10,000 for Jimmy Archer, and for what kind of a pitcher he can get for $10,000 Washington believes he can remain in the American League race with a star slabman.

* * *

Philadelphia tried out a catcher named Fosslich the other day, but he was not given the batting list of the Cubs or the Cincinnati Reds.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

FLYNN HOLDS PAPKE TO DRAW IN 10 ROUNDS

FIREMAN JIM FLYNN FIGHTS BILLY PAPKE TO A 10-ROUND DRAW

By H. M. WALKER.

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—Billy Papke and Jim Flynn fought ten whirlwind rounds at Naud Junction last night, the thirty minutes of battling being so desperately intense as to leave the spectators in a dazed condition as to who was the winner.

The furious rushing methods of Flynn during the final rounds had won the majority of the house to his side and there were loud cries of "Flynn, Flynn, Flynn," as the last bell rang. Intermingled with the demonstration for the Pueblo man came shouts for Papke from the more evenly headed spectators, who remembered the Papke body blow lead in the earlier rounds.

Neither Entitled to Decision.

There was but one thing to call the furious contest and that was a draw. To give the decision to either man would have been little less than a travesty, it was a case of Flynn's advantage in weight and his furious rushing tactics against Papke's cleaner boxing.

In the beginning the honors were all with Papke. He had mapped his plan of battle well and met Flynn's rushes with clean blows to the jaw and body. It was in the fifth round that Papke enjoyed his best opportunity. During this session he punched Flynn into a state of grogginess and for fully a space of sixty seconds looked as though Jim's finish was near.

The fireman's wonderful recuperative powers stood him in good stead, however. He rallied and came back so strongly that before another ten seconds had passed he had Papke hanging on for dear life.

Papke built Flynn's face to a pulp, but never once did the big fellow stop or even falter. Boring in at all times, shaking away like a demon at Billy's body and head, he wore the Kwanee man down to such a weary state that in the ninth Billy deliberately turned his back and ran a half dozen steps.

Flynn's Game Finish.

It was in the tenth round that Flynn gained considerable ground.

The fireman's previous efforts were aiming compared to the heart-breaking clip he unfurnished during the final three minutes of milling. He carried Papke before him as though the latter had been a child. Billy hung on, broke ground, covered up with both hands, and did everything in his power to ward off the onslaught of "Fighting Jim," who was battling on the strength of a fighting heart that will never know defeat until it has stopped beating.

Manager Ed Papke received a telegram from Harry Corbett at San Francisco, saying:

"If Billy wins to-night, September match with Ketchel is assured."

Fight by Rounds.

ROUND 1—Flynn waded into his man at the gong. Coming out of a clinch Papke peeled Flynn's head and stomach. Papke landed on Flynn's nose with terrific right and left and drew blood. Coming out of another clinch Papke sent blows to Flynn's face without return. Papke's round.

ROUND 2—Papke sent a terrific right to Flynn's jaw and followed with left to the stomach. Flynn rushed at Papke. Flynn continued to rush but Papke did for eleven-odd. Flynn got a right to Papke's face and Papke gathered in Flynn in the stomach after the bell.

ROUND 3—Flynn rushed Papke to the ropes. A right to the head and a left to the body sent Papke through the ropes. With half of Papke's body outside the ring, Flynn sent a hard right and left to the face in order to land a right to Papke's stomach. Papke got two rights to the stomach in close quarters.

ROUND 5—A hard right to the face followed by a right and left to the stomach dazed Flynn. Flynn got a right and left to Papke's head and they fought viciously, with Papke against the ropes as the gong sounded.

ROUND 6—Flynn opened with a hard right over the heart. Flynn landed Papke through the ropes with a right to the nose, and then battered him back. Papke got a right to Flynn's face and they clinched. Papke appeared distressed at this stage.

ROUND 9—Flynn made Papke run away. In a mix-up Papke landed head to head. Papke landing a right on Flynn's body pushes left eye. Flynn fought Papke to the ropes, but the fireman held his own. Fast exchanges left and clinched. Papke battling Flynn.

ROUND 10—Flynn made Flynn back up by playing for his body. Flynn put a hard right to the stomach and rushed Papke to the ropes. A right uppercut caught Papke on the jaw and Flynn hammered hard on the kidneys. They were fighting in the centre of the ring at the end of the round. The last seconds to decision, with Flynn had the advantage.

BOXING NOTES.

Sailor Burke may be Billy Papke's first opponent when the Flying Dutchman lands in the East. The Sailor has been offered a match with Jack Arnold (Cub).

* * *

Nat Goodwin, the actor, lost a cold $5,000 on the Papke-Ketchel fight, and Billy Roach, who referred the mill, lost a friend in Goodwin for calling Ketchel the decision. Nat thought Papke should have been given a draw at least when the fight was so close.

* * *

Manager Lucas of the Pacific A. C. of San Francisco is looking around for a card for this month as he would like the permit.

* * *

Billy Papke won't make a match with Jack Twin Sullivan as he also does not consider him in his class.

* * *

Tiers will be forty-five rounds of boxing at Colma's club on Saturday when Young Corbett meets Johnny Frayne. A ten-round preliminary is on the card.

* * *

Mike Twin Sullivan is training with Young Corbett for his battle with Frayne at Pinch on Saturday.

* * *

Dick Hyland, since he was beaten by Battling Nelson, wants to fight anybody as the Dane has passed him up. Hyland may be matched with Joe Lowell who beat Young Erne recently.

* * *

The mining promoters at Ely made a mistake when they figured Langford would box for a small amount on account of Ketchel and so started in making up.

* * *

* * *

Joe McGinley, a promoter in Butte, Mont., wants Tommy Burns to make the trip out there for a couple of fighting bouts. Tommy is a little part of this month's purse, but he is willing to take it to take this one, especially as it is possible to go seven rounds in Montana. His manager wired the same terms to McGinley.

* * *

George Dehny, the Canadian heavyweight fighter, is in Chicago and says he will soon make a trip for the Pacific Coast, where he expects to be able to get a match with Jim Flynn. Dehny has been defeated by nearly every big fighter in Northwood, but failed to land anybody for a battle. He intends to take a trip to Cripple Lake to see if he can hook up with Jack Johnson as a sparring partner, as Dehny is soon to bet any of the heavyweights.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

A. MUTT, THE IRREPRESSIBLE AND incomparable, put over another on the bookies by winning on Arasee in the fourth race at Empire City track. This was his sixth straight win, and I reckon Mutt's crazy—just like a fox. Are you straining along with him in the hand books? I'll lay a small wager you're following him in the BOSTON AMERICAN. Stanley Fay is like tip for to-day. Mutt's playing it.

HIGH OLD TIMES AROUND BOSTON yesterday when the Wine clerks played the Grocery clerks at Base Point, and the "butter and eggs" hooked up with the "fruits" on Donnelly's field. Of course it was baseball they played. Had invitations to both games and while we were strong for the wine clerks, were unable to get out and root for them. The grocery bill is paid this month, Smarty, so that's not the reason.

SOMETHING DOING IN THE POWER boat line Saturday when the annual race will be run from New York to Marblehead. The event is under the auspices of the Crescent Athletic Club and the start will be made from Bay Ridge, Long Island, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Fifteen boats likely will compete. Way not a long distance race for Boston power boats?

J. G. S.—THE CHAMPION CUBS ARE carrying twenty-two men with them on this trip. Few of the major league teams carry less than eighteen. It is a matter of unwritten baseball history that the Boston National club in the season of 1904 started on a Western trip with only twelve men, the three extra men being pitchers.

N. A. R.—AN UMPIRE MAY ORDER a player from the field for a number of causes, and in a case where such removal would prevent that player's team from having a full nine men, the game must be forfeited to the team not at fault.

FRANK CRAWFORD, WHO BILLS himself as a good, fast in-fielder, asks the AMERICAN to get Mac on some strong semi-professional team playing Saturdays and holidays. Frank's address is 14 Fisher avenue, Roxbury.

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR TWO GOOD teams to get together and fight it out for the title:

The manager of the Alpines, of Somerville, wishes to dispute the claim of the amateur championship of Somerville by the Corpish of the same city, until these two teams have met on the diamond. Address Henry Miller, 65 Alpine street, Somerville.

A strong interweight team would like access to services of a first-class cuffer for remedies; and the remainder of the season. Charles W. Carter, 27 Main street, Watertown, Mass.

OUR VENERABLE FRIEND EDWARD Payson Weston has finished his little jaunt from New York to San Francisco. As the game old sport is only seventy-one years of age, he is to be excused for being five days overdue. I have never been able to see these long distance walkers with a pack of field glasses, and the only thing that would make a long tramp worth while would be a case of financial stringency and dearth of freight trains, with some one sick at the other end. Read this from the telegraphic account of Weston's trip, pender over it and then tell me; what's the use:

The terrible heat of the Nevada deserts and the rough trail sifted the pedestrians so severely that only nine remain.

Three days more of this walk have been days of torture for him, but he would not quit.

JOE STANLEY, UTILITY OUTFIELDer of the champion Cubs, and one of the most popular men on the team, played with the Boston Nationals in 1903 and 1904. He says he learned everything Boston during his sojourn here except to carry the little green bag with the ease and abandon of the native born.

J. R. ENGLISH, CAMBRIDGE—YOU are up against hard proposition, J. R., for I am only a human being. No one but Jeff and the one who regulates the universe knows whether or not the former champion intends to fight Johnson. Take it from me, however, that as long as Sam Berger is Faithful Fido on the press box, every statement that he or will not fight will be countered with one that he will. Here is the dope from Jeff up-to-date, so take your choice:

I will fight if I can get late condition.

If I can get into condition I will erase Father Time and bring the championship back to the white race.

After seven weeks training I am sure I can get into condition.

I am training hard and will knock Johnson's head off when I fight him.

I will sign articles for Johnson as soon as my theatrical engagement is ended.

I have always been afraid of my own strength in the ring, but will turn loose all I have when I get at Johnson.

Johnson is a lemon and I will put him out with a punch.

I will be ready by Christmas to sign articles for a match with Johnson.

I find I cannot get into condition and I do not care to fight a negro anyway, so I will not meet Johnson.

It is a fake. I never said I would not fight Johnson. I will fight him as soon as I get into condition.

THE SUREST WAY FOR JEFFRIES to convince the public that he is not a colossal stiller and after nothing but the coin, is to cover Champion Jack Johnson's forfeit, pass up the cheap advertising game and get right down to good hard training for the fight. If Jeff will do this he can rehabilitate himself in the good graces of the followers of the fight game, to whom he has become a large chunk of Camembert.

BOUT CALLED OFF.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., July 13.—The ten-round bout scheduled for Fay Jr. Padden and Frank Fay was not boxed, owing to a small house, both men refusing to go on unless they were guaranteed money. Instead, Young Ramsey of Schenectady and Louis Arter of Glens Falls went ten rounds. Ramsey, owing to his greater weight and a longer reach, had the better of Arter, but could not land a knockout punch.

BOATS NAMED FOR CUP.

In the match for the Quincy Yacht Club trophy to be chosen, owned by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, the defender for the Quincy Y. C.; the Wolf, owned by Caleb Loring, challenger from the Boston Y. C.; the Sally X., owned by Lawrence F. Percival, the challenger from the Corinthian Y. C., and the Ellen, owned by C. P. Curtis, Jr., the challenger from the Boston Y. C.

TROTTER BURNS UP TRACK.

Sterling McKinney (2:06¾) one "set the Detroit track afire" in several spots. His fastest mile was in 2:06¾, and he virtually jogged the final quarter in 30 seconds in company with the pacing mare Geraldine. The son of McKinney is apparently as steady as any trotter that ever lived, and it is no secret that great things are expected of him.

BRITON KNOCKED OUT.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Joe Stiger, a brawny lightweight, knocked out Jim Holland, a little Englishman, in the fourth round of a ten-round contest at the Sharkey A. C. The Briton had decidedly the worst of it throughout. He was knocked down twice in the third round and was only saved by the bell.

JEANETTE MAY BOX LANGFORD

The Armory A. A. expects to hold a boxing show this month as an offer has been made to Joe Jeanette, the New York colored heavyweight, to meet Sam Langford.

Jeanette is anxious to get a whack at the sensational Boston tar middleweight and thinks he can spoil his ambition to get on a match with Jack Johnson.

As Langford is always fighting better the more work he has, there are good chances of seeing him in action against Jeanette, who holds the championship of Prince with Sandy Ferguson.

RACING IN MEXICO.

American and Mexican capitalists will meet during the ensuing week and perfect plans for the creation of a string of race tracks throughout the Republic of Mexico. The initial investment will be $1,000,000. Oswald Arthur Pope, of Essex, Eng., who will design and build the tracks, is on the scene.

FINE-LOOKING YACHT.

The forty-six-rater Adventuress, owned by C. C. Rumrill of Springfield, which was built by Herreshoff this Winter, attracted considerable attention while at Marblehead. She had the appearance of being a small edition of the Avenger.

FIVE PRIZES IN STEEPLECHASE RUN

The big outdoor athletic carnival of the Summer, the St. Augustine games, will soon be here and manager Jack Moakley, the Cornell trainer, is making preparations to have the event this year surpass any former sort of contests.

In one of the feature events, the steeplechase, the A. A. U. has granted a special sanction to allow five prizes being donated and the three mile run will have as many prizes for the long distance men to go after.

Harriman Diet Bread and Beer. Salvation Lies in Getting Fat

HARRIMAN UNDER-NOURISHED.

"Three Cheers for Bread and Beer" the Noted Financier Shouts

New York June 23.—"Three cheers for bread and beer" exclaimed E. H. Harriman hoarsely when he was examined by Professor Sanitas Sammering Austria yesterday. Professor Sammering announced that Mr. Harriman was under-nourished and that he was told he must get fat. Professor Sammering made a careful examination of Mr. Harriman and arrived at the conclusion that he was under-nourished. Mr. Harriman is now trying to put on Pounds and Pounds of Fat. The Nation is anxious that Mr. Harriman should get fat. Mr. Harriman is trying to get fat. E. H. HARRIMAN IS TRYING TO GET FAT.

Orders Bread and Beer to Make Harriman Fat

Noted Doctor Declares Railroad King Is Under-Nourished and Must Put On Flesh

New York June 23—E. H. Harriman, who has been ordered by Austrian doctors to put on flesh, arrived in this city yesterday. He was met at the station by a delegation of physicians, who escorted him to the Waldorf-Astoria. Dr. Sammering, the Austrian specialist, was among the number. He declared that Harriman must put on flesh. "Bread and beer will make Harriman fat," he said. "Harriman is under-nourished and must put on flesh."

LOTS OF BEER FOR HARRIMAN

New York, June 25—The American Beer Brewers' Association has made a contribution of a carload of beer and ale to E. H. Harriman, who is now in Austria. The beer is to be used in the treatment of the railroad magnate, who has been ordered to put on flesh. The association has also sent a number of physicians to Austria to watch the treatment given Harriman. Bulletins describing the progress made by Harriman will be issued daily.

GOOD RESULTS FROM THE USE OF GOOD BEER

Beer is the favorite drink among the most temperate races on earth. Make it your regular drink. Send a case of Pfaff's home today.

Beer is a health-mender and a health-builder and physicians throughout the world are advising its regular and moderate use.

Beer is brewed from nutritious grains and the food value of these grains is in every drop of good beer. Pfaff's is good beer—it is "the German kind" and has been the standard for more than half a century. It has been brewed right here in Boston since 1857.

Pfaff's is a food beverage. It gives zest to the appetite, and aids digestion.

LIFE IN THE MARBLE PALACE AT NEWPORT

By DOROTHY DIX

MRS. BELMONT is opening up her famous marble palace at Newport. With her will live her daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough, and her son, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

These three, mother and children, represent the tragedy of domestic life, of the love that failed and the marriage that was a failure, for all three of them are estranged and separated from the ones to whom they were bound by the holiest ties on earth, and whom they swore to cherish through life to death.

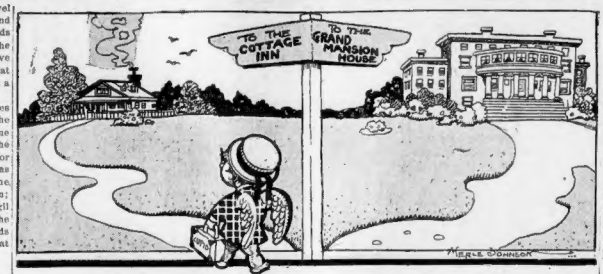
The mother is divorced from her children's father. The daughter is separated from the titled husband that she married with such pomp and splendor, and the son is separated and, according to rumor, is soon to be divorced from the heiress he married and whose millions were added to his own.

These people, so rich and so highly placed in the world, have everything that money can buy, but they lack that which money cannot buy—a happy home, filled with love and tenderness. Envious people and gaping sightseers, passing the marble palace at Newport this Summer, will say many things of it. They will marvel at its splendor and magnificence, and the perfection with which its grounds are kept up, but nobody knowing the history of the three people who live in it, and the living sorrows that eat out their hearts, will speak of it as a happy home.

The mere possession of wealth does not change human nature, and the eternal needs of the soul are the same among the rich and the poor. The millionaire can yearn just as much for love as the pauper; he can be just as lonely, just as bereaved when the one he loves fails to give affection to him; he can keep just as bitter a vigil through the midnight hours when he audits his account with fate and finds himself a bankrupt in the things that really make life worth while.

Money No Salve for Pain

Nor is her money any salve to the wounds her husband deals a woman when her husband is unfaithful to her and prefers other women to her, or is cruel and neglectful. Just as many bitter tears are shed into silken pillows as ever are into cotton ones, and there are just as many breaking hearts under point lace and diamonds as there are under calico.



The sacred fire of love burns more clearly in the humble cottage than in the marble palace.

In this country, where we put too much stress upon money, it is well for people in ordinary circumstances to consider a case like this of the Vanderbilts just for the lesson in contentment that it teaches and as an illustration of the worthlessness of mere money in bringing happiness.

There is not a poor clerk, going home tired at night after a hard day's work, but who knows that there will be the patter of little children's feet to welcome him when he puts his key in his door, and who will be drawn across the humble threshold by tender hands, and who is in the eyes of one adoring woman, a very king among men, who is not more to be envied than the millionaire with his yachts, and automobiles, and palaces, but who has not one heart in all the world that he can turn to, secure of receiving from it unselfish love and devotion.

There is not a poor woman in all the land, cooking and scrubbing and sewing for her family, but married to a man on whose strong arms she can lean, on whose tenderness she can throw herself as on the tenderness of God, and whose faith and love she never has to question, whose lot in life is not a thousand-fold happier than that of the woman whose millions only brought her the name of a husband, while his affections were given elsewhere, and who was flouted and scorned and neglected and insulted until, for very pride's sake, she could bear it no more.

Real Joys Beyond Price

There is not a plain little cottage nor a stuffy, crowded flat where peace and sympathy and mutual consideration abide that is not more of a true home than the marble palace where the sacred fire has gone out on the hearthstone.

It is a blessed thing that the real joys of life are without money and without price, and are even more free to the poor than to the rich. Health, love, beautiful family life, these are the three best gifts of fate, and they are far more likely to be possessed by those in moderate circumstances than they are by the extremely wealthy.

Love, Not Wealth, the King

Somehow, love and lucre do not seem to go together. The rich young man is generally married for his money, the rich girl is the foredoomed victim of the fortune hunter. The rich, married man is the prey of adventuresses. In addition, the very conditions of life among the plutocrats tend to separate a husband and wife, instead of drawing them together, and so it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a millionaire to escape the divorce court.

On the other hand the poor man knows that he is loved for himself alone, and that when a girl puts her hand in his and promises to go through life with him, she does it because her affection is strong enough to stand the hardships that she must undergo with him. The poor girl knows that there is no discount on the love that makes her husband slave to support himself with her support, and toil and strive to stand between her and the world.

Letters, or Scrawls—Which?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE is a foolish little girl writing long daily letters to me under the impression that I am a man and sometimes she writes two or three letters a day. They are not the usual letters, asking for advice, but long, personal letters expressing deep affection—letters such as one should write only to a person whom one knew and loved well.

If she wrote to me as one woman friend to another, I would be glad to get her letters, but there are love letters, written to me as a man, and, what's more, a man she has never met.

A great many girls write me pleasant, friendly letters, not asking for advice, but merely wishing me well, and giving their opinions on various topics. These letters do not appear in my column, as they are just little personal confidences.

The girl I speak of is wasting so much time writing love letters, which mean nothing. Some day she will fall in love with a real man, not the fictitious person she has created out of her own imagination, and then she will wonder how in the world she ever wrote these foolish letters.

Different in the Old Days

A girl cannot be too particular about the kind of letter she writes. In our grandmothers' days part of a girl's education consisted in being taught to write a good letter.

"In my day," said one old lady to me, "every girl was taught to write a gracefully expressed, interesting letter, but nowadays the letter written by the average girl is a scrawl. It begins on the first page, then skips to the last and ends up in the middle or on another sheet. It is blotted and untidy, and you are no wiser after you read it than you were before."

I had to agree with her, for I receive so many letters of that kind that I know she spoke the truth.

It is no compliment to receive a letter written in lead pencil nor one covered with blots and erasures.

I have told you many times, and I repeat it, never write gushing, sentimental letters to men. Even if you are engaged to a man you can be loving and tender without being silly.

Writing to a Man

Also remember that nothing is more cowardly and contemptible than an anonymous letter. It is stabbing in the dark.

Do not write to men you do not know. It starts in a spirit of fun, but it often ends unpleasantly. Some girls are mad enough to provoke marriage to men whom they know only by correspondence. Nothing could be more of a risk. Meet the man first. He may be utterly different in reality from what he appeared to be under the inspiration of his own pen.

When a man fails to answer your letter, write once more, in case of the first having gone astray, but if the second brings no answer, do not write a third time. It is only useless humiliation on your part. Once more I assure my young friend who writes me so often that she is wasting her time and sentiment in writing to a man who does not exist.

He Had Sand, but No Luck

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE deputy sheriff had been one of the two passengers on the incoming stage that day, and he was welcomed by the crowd at Pap Dacey's with the especial warmth due to a man who had travelled as far East as Yankton and had returned safe and sound to a fond home community.

"I got her there all right," he said. "No trouble at all. She didn't act up once—just sat an' laffed an' looked out o' winder when we struck the railroad, like a kid, an' did everything good. Had told her to, mind y, but she didn't know it. She didn't know him, not to recognize him onct, but he felt some comforted when he went over the 'sylum an' saw how well fixed she was goin' to be. And they say there's a good chance of curin' her, too. The darndest mess of crazy folks there you ever saw! And, say, I saw ol' Lem Fuller."

"The hell you say!" exclaimed Pap Dacey. "I thought he'd about ol' Lem," said the Cherry Ripe amalgamator. "Is he still bragging about that 2:40 team of his?"

"Jest the same. There's no show for him, I reckon. But he ain't changed none."

"What 2:40 team was that?" asked Jerry Jones, who had never heard of any 2:40 team in this man's country."

"Before your time, my son," said the deputy. Lem Fuller used to own 'em. He was a great sport. He'd back anythin' as long as he had a red, and claimed to know all about hoss racin' an' hosses. He never had no sort of luck, but he didn't let that discourage him none."

He Had Plenty of Nerve

"His luck didn't stack up with his sand. He busted up—sold the Bluebanket land to Dutch Che, and blew that on a game o' stud. All he had left on earth was a team o' ponies that had come in over the Sidney trail from Missoura.

"Them hosses kin go,' he says. 'They're got it right in 'em. They ain't much to look at, but the speed is there.

"The only pleasure he took was to lam he outs into them ponies an' carry 'em an', if he could get anybody to listen to him, to brag about the way they'd make Maud S. smoke dust as soon as he got 'em trained up a little. The boys used to make legs o' sport about them ponies. They always called them the 2:40 team, an' used to go to Lem an' banter him for a trade, lettin' on they wanted to own 'em the worst way.

When They Made the Record

"Well, one day Jack Walsh an' Wayne French an' some more of the rounders came along an' saw Lem's team standin' outside here onhitched they'd stand anywhere), an' they cut- united they'd see if they could get the runts to move. Jack went up the hill a piece an came back with a bunch o' cactus. Then they tied the cactus on to the ponies' tails an' let go.

"Runt? Well, I guess so! They jest hit for high places. They went down Sacramento avenue like a streak, the wagon jumpin' an' bouncin' behind 'em, sheddin' sideboards an' end gates an' seats every jump.

"Lem was here in Pap's, an' the racket woke him up, an' he run out to see what had broke loose.

"Lem's jaw dropped for a minute, but he straightened right up with a smile that went to his ears. He took off his ol' hat, an' swingin' it around his head, yelled:

"'Git thar, you little sons-of-guns! GIT THAR!'

"The next moment the team toppled over the bluff an' went furain' end over end three hundred feet down to the Redwater. Lem faced around to the mob standin' there a-lookin' as thrilled as if he'd jest struck a vein o' sixty-dollar ore. 'I told you it was in 'em,' he shouted. 'Ain't they soo-preme-ly the stuff?'

"Everybody yelled an' laffed, an' at that Lem sorter stopped an' looked blankly at 'em. Then he sat down on a rock an' began to cry.

"That was the last o' Lem. Cal Stevens, who was sheriff then, took him to Yankton a week later, plum crazy. It was him I words when we parted: 'You may mention your suspicions of the expected attack to Monsieur Stangerson, to Inspector Jacques, to Frederic Larsan and to anybody in life you like.'

"The poor fellow left me hardly knowing what he was saying. My silence and eyes told him that I had guessed a large part of the secret. And, indeed, he must have been at his wits' end, to have come to me at such a time, and to abandon Mademoiselle Stangerson. He had realized him as to the coincidence.

"Then he was gone. I began to think that I should have to use even a greater exertion than his, so that if the man should come that night he might not forestalled by the cowardly fear which had been expected. Certainly! I would allow him to get in if necessary, so that, dead or alive, I might see his face clearly! He must be got rid of. Mademoiselle Stangerson must be freed from this continual threatening danger.

"Yes, my boy," said Rouletabille, after filling his pipe on the table, and emptying his mug of cider, "I must see to it, and I will see to it, but I want you to impress it on that part of my brain where I have drawn my circle of reasoning."

COMING MAGNATES

IT never pays to underestimate the small boy, according to reports that are coming in from Goodland. A woman's club at that town decided that the town needed beautifying, and offered the small boys 10 cents per 100 for old tin cans, never expecting that half of the money in the fund would be claimed. The boys, needing the money for fish hooks and corks and baseballs, got busy, and at last reports had turned in 20,000 cans, with a lot of alleys still to hear from. The club treasury is busted, and the ladies, it is declared, are now planning to study grecian art next year, and will leave civic improvement in the hands of the City Council.—Kansas City Journal.

DR. JOHNSON ON BREEDING

WHEN Boswell suggested to Johnson that "General Paoli," whom they had just left, "had the politest sort of way of saying he had ever seen," Johnson denied that politeness was ever always the best bred men. "Perfect good breeding," said he, "consists in having no particular mark of any profession, but a general elegance of manners; whereas, in a military man, you can commonly distinguish the brand of soldier."

LONG-HAIRED HAMLETS

WHY do actors so often wear long hair? Perhaps this is the reason: There once was a starnie in England under which actors found wandering were liable to be branded—through the right ear. The long hair concealed the decoration, and thus the custom was started.—Kansas City Star.

CHAPTER XIX.

Rouletabille Invites Me to Breakfast at the Donjon Inn.

"HOW'S Daddy Mathieu?" asked Rouletabille.

"Not much better—not much better; he is still confined to his bed."

"His rheumatism still sticks to him, then?"

"Yes. Last night I was again obliged to give him morphine—the only drug that gives him any relief."

She spoke in a soft voice. Everything about her expressed gentleness. She was, indeed, a beautiful woman; somewhat with an air of indolence, with great eyes seemingly black and blue—amorous eyes. Was she happy with her problem rheumatic husband? The scene at which we had once been present did not lead us to believe that she was; yet there was something in her bearing that was not suggestive of despair.

She disappeared into the kitchen to prepare our repast, leaving on the table a bottle of excellent cider. Rouletabille filled our earthenware mugs, loaded his pipe, and quietly explained to me his reason for asking me to come to the Glandier with revolvers.

"Yes," he said, contemplatively looking at the clouds of smoke he was puffing out, "yes, my dear boy, I expect the assassin to-night."

A brief silence followed, which I took care not to interrupt, and then he went on:

"Last night, just as I was going to bed, Monsieur Robert Darzac knocked at my room. When he came in he rounded to me that he was compelled to go to Paris the next day—that is this morning.

"The reason which made this journey necessary was at once peremptory and mysterious; it was not possible for him to explain its object to me. 'I go, and get,' he added, 'I would give my life not to leave Mademoiselle Stangerson at the moment.'

"He did not try to hide that he believed her to be once more in danger. 'It will not greatly trouble me if something happens to-morrow night,' he avowed, 'and yet I trust he should. I cannot be back at the Glandier before the morning of the day after to-morrow.'

"I asked him to explain himself, and this is all he would tell me. His anticipation of coming danger had come to him solely from the coincidence that Mademoiselle Stangerson had been twice attacked, and both times when he had been absent.

"On the night of the incident of the inexplicable gallery he had been obliged to be away from the Glandier. On the night of the tragedy in the Yellow Room he had also not been able to be at the Glandier, though this was the first time he had declared himself on the matter.

"Now, a man so moved who should still go away must be acting under compulsion—must be obeying a will stronger than his own. That was how I reasoned, and I told him so. He replied 'Perhaps,' and added that if Mademoiselle Stangerson was compelling him. He protested that she was not. His determination to go to Paris had been taken without any conference with Mademoiselle Stangerson.

"To cut the story short, he repeated that his belief in the possibility of a fresh attack was founded entirely on the extraordinary resemblance between the two attacks.

"'If anything happens to Mademoiselle Stangerson,' he said, 'it would be terrible both of us. For her, because her life would be in danger; for me because I could neither defend her from the attack nor tell of where I had been. I am perfectly aware of the suspicion cast on me. The examining magistrate and Monsieur Larsan are both on the point of believing in my guilt. Larsan tracked me the last time I went to Paris, and I had all the trouble in the world to get rid of him.

"'Why do you not tell me the name of the murderer now, if you know it?' I cried.

"Monsieur Darzac appeared extremely troubled by my question, and replied to me in a hesitating tone:

"'I—I know the name of the murderer? Why, how could I know his name? I—' at once replied: 'Your Mademoiselle Stangerson.'

"He grew so pale that I thought he was about to faint, and I saw that I had hit the right nail on the head. 'Monsieur, and he knew the name of the murderer!'

"When he recovered himself he said to me: 'I am going to pray you, since you have been here, to have appreciated your exceptional intelligence and your unusual ingenuity. But I see in this service of you. Perhaps I am wrong to fear an attack during the coming night; but, as I must act with foresight, I count on you to frustrate any attempt that may be made. Take every step needful to protect Mademoiselle Stangerson. Keep a most careful watch of her room. Don't go to sleep nor allow yourself one moment of repose.

"'The man we dread is remarkably cunning—with a cunning that has never been equalled. If you keep watch his very cunning may save her; because it's impossible that he should not know that you are watching; and knowing it, he may not venture.

"'Have you spoken of all this to Monsieur Stangerson?'

"'No. I do not wish him to ask me, as you just now did, for the name of the murderer. I tell you all this, M. Rouletabille, because I have great, very great, confidence in you. I know that you do not suspect me.'

"The poor man spoke in jerks. He was evidently suffering. I pitied him the more because I felt sure that he would rather allow himself to be killed than tell me who the murderer was. As for Mademoiselle Stangerson, I felt that she would rather allow herself to be murdered than denounce the man of the Yellow Room and of the inexplicable gallery.

"The man must be dominating her, or both, by some inscrutable power. They were dreading and nothing so much as the chance of Monsieur Stangerson knowing that the murderer was held by her adulant.

"I made Monsieur Darzac understand that he had explained himself sufficiently, and that he might refrain from telling me any more than he had already told me. I promised him to watch through the night.

"He insisted that I should establish an absolutely impassable barrier about Mademoiselle Stangerson's chamber, and that the boudoir where the nurses were sleeping, and around the drawing room where, since the affair of the inexplicable gallery, Monsieur Stangerson had slept. In short, I was to put a cordon round the whole apartment.

"From his insistence I gathered that Monsieur Darzac intended not only to come, if impossible for the expected man to reach the chamber of Mademoiselle Stangerson, but to make that impossibility so visibly clear that seeing himself expected, he would at once go away.

"That was how I interpreted his final

BOSTON HAS CHANCE AT 1910 GLIDDEN TOUR

By J. C. KERRISON.

MADISON, Wis., July 15.—There is rather a strong impression that the Glidden tour next year will start and finish either in New York or Boston.

This idea of a transcontinental tour, which has been talked more or less for the past few years, seems to be gaining ground. The great majority of the contestants on this tour are heartily in favor of such a route. Certain it is they would enjoy a trip over the Rockies, rather than come back from Denver to Kansas City.

The inducement for such a tour next year has already been inaugurated, and it has the hearty support of Charles J. Glidden, the donor of the Glidden trophy, and Chairman Hower of the contest committee, although the latter is most insistent in stating these will not again accept his present position.

The tourists had rather an easy time of it yesterday, although a steady rain did rather long, being 170 miles. The first quarter of the distance was over hilly roads of exceptionally good quality, and then came a particularly bad stretch leading into Milwaukee.

Plunges Into Ditch.

At South Milwaukee occurred the only exceptional incident of the race. The high-wheeled Metzger had taken to the ditch, breaking one of her front wheels and being in such condition that it was impossible to continue in the tour.

It seems that the driver, Miss Metzger, was hanging to the street car track, and coming to a switch, jumped the track and into the ditch. Fortunately no one was injured.

George Smithson, who is driving one of the Studebaker press cars, was flagged by the officials at Fort Dodge while en route to breakfast Smithson, who had met these officers on his trip in Fort Dodge, evidently enjoyed the army rations, as did the newspaper men forming his party.

No penalties were imposed in the ride, all the cars reaching Madison away ahead of schedule time, the roads from Milwaukee being exceptionally good on the main and permitting of fast time. The scenery was attractive and an improvement over that of the first two days of the run.

Cars Show Up Well.

The work of the Maxwell car is showing up well, while the Kerosene, driven by White, is meeting with every success imaginable. One car that is doing excellent work is the little Haynoobile, which, up to date, has arrived at every control on time, and, so far, has suffered nothing in single adjustment.

Frank Wing in the Marmon and the Pierce team are constantly to the fore, while the big Thomas, Flyer, with its 60-horsepower car to the run, travels along at a right satisfying clip, and when it finally comes and finishing clean. The Chalmers team is likewise doing good work, and the Premiers are constantly in the public eye. Everybody in the car and their competitors being at the front from start to finish.

The drive of 145 miles scheduled for today is the one of the most important promises to be the hardest of the tour so far. The end is of the poorest sort, with lots of roots and great banks of sand. So soon as the road improves many of the cars are fearful of results.

In spite of this they were on hand very early for the start, the three Pierce cars checking in the first, followed by the two Marmons and the Premier outfits. The Studebaker cars are left early, and are well on the roads when the field left Hotel Street, Madison.

4 PICKPOCKETS IN POLICE NET

Four men believed to be well known professional New York pickpockets were rounded up by Special Officers Flynn and O'Donnell of the Hanover street station, while they were working the crowds in the vicinity of the North station. The two officers were disguised as teamsters, with their faces and hands smeared with coal dust and soot. When the men, the officers say, were attempting to snatch watches and money from persons in a crowd at Market and Canal streets.

The men gave their names as Max Brown and Louis Miller of New York city, and Harry Cohen and Sam Schneider of Philadelphia.

STONEHAM PRINTER AND PUBLISHER DEAD

STONEHAM, July 15.—Willis Elmer Whittier, the junior member of the firm of F. L. and W. E. Whittier, paper dealers, printers and proprietors of the Stoneham Independent and a life long resident of this town is dead of Bright's disease at the home of his father on this date. The death of Mr. Whittier came as a shock to the entire community.

RANGER OFF TO DENMARK

The commissioners of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School have received a cablegram from Commander William P. Lay, U. S. N., announcing the departure of the Ranger from Santa Cruz, Island, on 22, for Copenhagen. After a stay of a few days the ship will proceed to Stockholm.

MEXICAN STUDENT DROWNS

HYANNIS, July 15.—Roberto Pablos, twenty-eight years old, a native of Mexico city, who had been sent by the Mexican government to attend the Summer session of the Hyannis Normal School, was drowned while bathing near the Hyannis Yacht Club.

Have You Observed—

And Do You Continue to Observe—How Beautifully Our Financial System Works?

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

They are fixing up tariffs and taxes in Washington now.

"They" are the gentlemen that you voters send to Washington, and that the trusts get hold of after they get to Washington.

Have you observed the various transactions in that body of privately owned public representatives?

It wasn't hard to identify the individuals, from Bailey to Aldrich, Republicans and Democrats, whose body, soul, breeches, pneumogastric nerve and conscience are owned by the corporations.

By one very simple thing you could know them.

Did you observe that, when there was any talk about the duty on some trust-manufactured article, these trust-owned gentlemen always wanted the duty put up, that the ordinary, little voters might pay more?

And did you observe that when there was discussion of government tax on the net income of corporations, these trust-owned gentlemen wanted the tax made smaller, IN ORDER THAT THE CORPORATIONS MIGHT PAY LESS?

And have you observed that on the things that you buy, your representatives have decided to increase the price, and on the tax that the corporation is to pay upon its earnings YOUR REPRESENTATIVES have decided to diminish the amount that the corporation is to pay?

You send men to Washington, you pay their salaries, their mileage, their secretaries' wages.

BUT YOU DON'T SEND THEM ANY OF THOSE FAMOUS ARCHBOLD "CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT."

When voting time comes, and when taxing time comes, do you observe how the certificate of deposit outweighs the voter's vote and the voter's salary?

These men have the effrontery on the same day, and almost in the same breath, to fight openly for a lower tax on the net profits of an over-capitalized trust, and to fight for a higher tax on the cheapest kind of cotton stockings worn by poor women and children. Surely, they have the courage of their dishonesty!

Did you observe also, in reading your daily newspaper, that when it comes to a question affecting taxes to be paid by little people, LIKE YOURSELF, the whole thing is ironclad and inevitable? Everything's fair when it comes to taxing the little man.

But, where the corporations are concerned, you observed that there was an earnest plea to exempt their bonds from taxation. That represents debt, they say.

And there's a very stern law, punishing severely any government agent who tells any of the secrets that he finds out when he investigates the affairs of some corporation trying to dodge taxation.

If a poor dressmaker comes back from Europe with a couple of trunks full of clothes, there's no polite secrecy for her. Everything is hauled out from her trunks and scattered around publicly, and she is taxed to the top notch.

She might also say, "This represents my indebtedness. I owe for this. Don't tax me on my debts." That wouldn't help her.

Did you observe, in connection with the injunction as to secrecy in corporation matters, a certain little exception introduced into the law?

This exception appears in Section 7 of the bill which makes it a misdemeanor for a government employe to divulge "in any manner whatever" information that he gets about the corporations, "except upon the special direction of the President."

You know, surely, what that means. It means that the gentlemanly trusts expect to own the President for a good long time to come. First they name him, and then they own him. And it will be very convenient to have that little exception in the law in case they want THEIR PRESIDENT sternly, haughtily and patriotically to reveal damaging facts concerning SOME corporation of which the governing trusts do not approve.

For instance, if the Steel Trust had a rival, then the Steel Trust's President would have authority under the law to make public the business secrets of that rival.

And if the Standard Oil Trust had a rival, the same thing might happen. All of which would be very convenient.

Do you observe what a beautiful system exists in this country?

Do you wonder that the rich men get very much richer, and that the little fellows plod along in a rut?

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THEY HAVE THEM IN PROVIDENCE, TOO

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It is with interest that I read the letters from people that are disgusted with the "end seat hog" and with disgust that I read one—the only one I ever heard of—to be in sympathy with people that insist upon retaining the end seat in a car.

To compare a seat in a public conveyance, like a street car, with a ball game or moving picture show seat is about like comparing a Methodist camp meeting with a circus.

We all have seen the end seat "porker" allow a stout woman or one with a child in her arms or an elderly person use a great deal of energy and suffer the inconvenience of trying to pass by persons to get a seat; as for myself I much prefer to move over than to be walked on.

Get the habit, when entering a car, of taking a seat at the other end and see how much quicker the people will get on the car when they can see a vacant seat at a glance. It means many minutes saved—also some gain saved when you don't get your pet corn stepped on.

The people of Boston, as a whole, are much more considerate than those of Providence. This nuisance is not the only one we have to bear with, but the method of paying fares is the most nauseating, which is not only a nuisance to the public, but doubles the work for the conductor. But, what's the use, we don't. The State is owned by the New Haven Company. We have one remedy—don't use the register.

I believe if the railroad companies would put up a cardboard sign showing a car with a "grunter" on the end of each seat, and words something like these, "We have one of our friends don't be one," or "please move over." Also, if the papers would have an article each day for awhile about the persons that cling to the end seat, the public might take the hint and move along.

WOULD UNCLE SAM SUPPORT ENGLAND?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

What has England ever done for the United States except what we forced her to do, that would demand in return our standing by her silently or otherwise in the event of a conflict with another European power? It has been said that in her position she stands as a protector of the United States; it certainly takes British nerve to the utmost to make a remark like that.

United States does not need protection by England or any other power, but if she did England would be probably the last nation to whom we would turn for assistance in an hour of need. History has shown this only too plainly, and it would be a wise thing for England to screw up her courage and stand upon her own mental wires a recoil with a nation worthy of the name is threatened, and not cringe and bow and bow that this great nation owes her support in any way.

SAY PETE COMING FISHING WITH ME?
SURE! ID LOVE TO GO FISHING
THIS IS MY FRIEND PETE HE'S GOING FISHING WITH US
GLAD TO MEET YOU PETE. DO YOU PLAY PINOCHLE
BOYS THIS IS MY FRIEND PETE
PETE'S ALL RIGHT
ITS PETES PLAY
ITS YOUR PLAY PETE
HOW ABOUT THE FISHING?
YOU WOULDN'T BREAK UP THE GAME NOW
JUST ONE MORE HAND
ONE MORE GAME BEFORE THE LAST TRAIN LEAVES FOR HOME
SAY BILL WHEN DO WE GO FISHING?
DONT BREAK UP THE GAME PETE
COME ON PETE, OLD BOY
COME ON, PETE LETS GO FISHING
NOT IN TEN MILLION YEARS

And Not Only That, But—

AIN'T IT TOUGH WHEN YOU FALL DOWN AND TEAR YOUR TROUSERS
AND YOU HAVE TO WAIT WHILE THE TAILOR MENDS THEM.
FIRE!
AND SOMEONE YELLS "FIRE"
AND NOT ONLY THAT, BUT—
HE'S DIPPY!
WHERE'S THE FIRE?
NUTTY FOR FAIR!
IT TURNS OUT TO BE A FALSE ALARM!

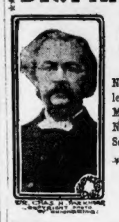
DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE —ON— SOCIALISM'S AIM



"To the Sane Mind—and It Is by Sane Minds, Not Fevered Ones, That the World's Great Problems Are to Be Solved—Black and White Are More Appealing Than Scarlet and Yellow. The Names of Proudhon and Marx Are to the World's Sober Sense What a Red Rag Is to a Bull."

THE article by John Spargo printed in the June number of the North American Review leads to rob the doctrine of Socialism of some of its terrors.

The tone of the writer is conciliatory. Any reasonable and generous-minded reader can easily find himself in sympathy with the spirit by which his article is animated.

The difficulty which we have to face in dealing with this one most vivid question of our age is that the word Socialism is construed in so great a variety of ways.

In this respect it is like the words Darwinism, Orthodoxy, Christianity and a number of other terms similarly inclusive in their import and which mean almost as many things as the writers are many that discuss them.

Added to this is the fact of the extreme and passionate views for which this word Socialism is used as a label by writers who are more or less wild in character and correspondingly wild in their forms of opinion and modes of expression.

When there are so many million people of all conditions and nationalities devoting themselves to a single problem, some of them less intelligent, perhaps, but all tremendously in earnest, we must conclude, without further argument, that there is involved in the matter some basis of truth which the rest of the people, even though not counting themselves with the Socialists, cannot afford to disregard, either in their own interests or in the interests of the world at large.

Do Discredit to Their Own Doctrine

Socialists have done a great deal to discredit their own doctrine. Respectable people avoid attending exhibitions that are advertised upon the billboards in flaming colors

To the sane mind—and it is by sane minds, not fevered ones, that in the last analysis all the world's great problems are going to be solved—black and white are more appealing than scarlet and yellow.

The names of Marx and Proudhon are to the world's sober sense what a red rag is to a bull, and ruffle that equanimity of thought which can alone make for the ascertainment of truth.

Nothing that a man calls his is absolutely his. However clear may seem the title that he holds to what he calls his house, fire, earthquake, flood, condemnation commissioners, tax assessors, death may wrest it from him irrecoverably, and without redress. Whatever we dignify by the name of property we hold in lease either from the people, from nature or from the Almighty.

This is one of those fundamental facts that ought to sober to exceeding quietude and modesty the minds of all who undertake the discussion of economic questions.

In coming to the special purposes of his article he cordially assents to the validity of private property, and does not accept the doctrine of Socialism if it be defined according to the terms used by many Socialists at home and abroad) as "the social ownership and control of all the means of production, distribution and exchange."

Such definition is the flat negation of all personal proprietorship and freedom, and altogether subversive of existing forms of civilization.

What Is the Party's Final Purpose?

Mr. Spargo professes himself to be a thorough believer in private property up to the point where such private property is utilized to the exploitation of the workingman.

By which we understand him to mean that he makes no objection to private holdings, whatever their nature or amounts, provided such holdings are not operated to the disadvantage or humiliation of the laborer.

Our only present interest is in discovering what he conceives to be the real animus and ultimate purpose of Socialism, and in discovering, moreover, that collectivism to the extent to which he deems collectivism a necessity, is not a system to be encouraged for its own sake, but only as a means by which the laborer may be able to come to his own and attain not to a diminished but rather to an increased amount of that delightful experience of ownership which Mr. Spargo believes should be the prerogative of the majority, not the monopoly of the few.

The principle of Socialism as thus represented, grazes as closely the spirit of the Golden Rule that if we were quite sure that Mr. Spargo has fairly interpreted the prevailing Socialist impulse we should, a great many of us, be only too glad to be enrolled in the Socialist ranks.
